Vol. 45 No. 22 | Four Sections | Lancaster Farming, Saturday, April 1, 2000 | $31.00 Per Year | 60¢ Per Copy

Jack and Donna Coleman were honored with the Outstanding Cooperator of the Year Award last week at the Lancaster County Conservation District banquet. See story page A28. Photo by Andy Andrews

The newly-crowned New York Dairy Princess court toast the dairy industry. From left are Christine Lee Weissman, Second Alternate Dairy Princess; Marianne Moody, New York State Dairy Princess; and Cairy Norman, First Alternate Dairy Princess. The girls were chosen from 27 county dairy princesses who competed in the recent New York Dairy Princess Pageant in Syracuse, NY. See story on page B12.

Set Clocks Ahead Tonight

You may be familiar with the old saying, "spring forward, fall back." That time of year has arrived again to change from Eastern Standard Time back to Daylight Saving Time, providing more hours of daylight for farmers. We "spring forward" one hour at 2 a.m. Sunday, April 2. So turn your clocks ahead one hour before going to bed Saturday night. Remember, animal feeding and milking schedules need to be adjusted accordingly.

FROZEN EGGS,
MARCH 24, 2000.

FEDERAL-STATE

Majority prices were unchanged on whole and whites, but slightly lower on yolks when compared to a week earlier. Demand was often light and unaggressive for fully adequate offerings of yolks, interest on balance of items was moderate but showing some improvement. The undertone was at least fully steady on whites and whole, and barely steady to steady on yolks. Liquid and frozen eggs (ingredients included) processed under federal inspectin in the Eastern region for the week ending March 18, 2000 were 9 % less than last week, and 2 % less than a year ago. Shell egg suppliers were fully adequate for needs.

DELMARVA BROILER/FRYER MARKET. FEDERAL-STATE

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was generally slow, typical of end-of-the month, mid week activity and the lenten period. Seller offerings varied by both size and volume, but were more than sufficient for current buying interest. Live supplies were mostly moderate; weights varied in a full range of light to heavy. Processing schedules were moderate to moderately heavy. Less than truckiot asking prices were unchanged at 51 to 63 cents. Trade sentiment was barely steady. In the part complex, thighs continued to clear well. Other items were at least adequate. ACTUAL SLAUGHTER WEEK ENDING 03/17/2000 WAS 11,672,201 5.03

NATIONAL EGG MARKET - AT A GLANCE

In Chicago and New York prices were slightly higher. In the Eastern region, prices were unchanged to slightly higher. Elsewhere, prices were unchanged. The market tone ranged steady to cautiously firm, mostly steady to fully steady. Demand was generally mixed, fair to good at times, mostly moderate, and was best for the occasional retail promotion. Supplies were usually adequate, but often held with seasonal confidence. Breaking stock supplies were mostly adequate for the fair demand. Light type fowl were sufficient for current needs.

National Grain Market

St. Joseph, MO
Wed Mar 29, 2000
USDA-MO Dept Ag Market News
Daily National Grain Market Summary

Gains were seen in grain and soybean bids, today, supported by fund buying on the board. Concerns that some areas of Oklahoma and Kansas may be too wet after recent rains, added some strength to wheat bids. Light overnight export wheat sales were reported and there are indications that Japan bought around 4 million bushels of corn. Traders await Friday's USDA Prospective Planting report. Wheat 1 cent higher. Corn 2 to 4 cents higher. Sorghum 5 to 6 cents higher. Soybeans 1 to 3 cents higher.

The Old Farmer's Almanac This Week With

THE NATIONAL PARK SERVICE

On April 5 and 6, 1916, Congress listened to arguments in favor of the establishment of the National Park Service "The parks are the Nation's pleasure grounds and the Nation's restoring places . " said J Horace McFarland, president of the American Civic Association Conservationists and civic leaders were persuasive, it seems, for Congress voted in the affirmative Since then, the National Park Service has grown from overseeing 40 national parks and monuments to 370 distinct areas Today, the National Parks system includes more than 83 million acres in 49 states

Oh, Wilderness were paradise enow!

TIP OF THE WEEK

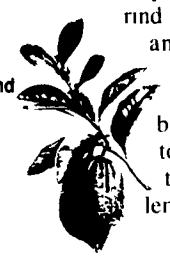
LEMON POPPY-SEED MUFFINS

6 tablespoons butter
1 cup sugar
2 large eggs
1-1/2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 cup milk
grated rind of 1 lemon
1/2 cup poppy seeds
1/2 cup walnuts, ground fine (optional)

Glaze:
1/3 cup sugar
juice of 1 lemon



Line muffin tins with paper cups Cream butter, sugar, and eggs. Add dry ingredients alternately with milk and lemon rind Stir in poppy seeds and ground walnuts (if using) Fill muffin cups half full and bake at 375°F for 15 to 20 minutes Glaze tops with sugar and lemon juice mixture

Makes 10 to 12 muffins.

The Old Farmer's Weather Proverbs

On the 3rd of April comes the cuckoo and the nightingale.

Better April showers than the breadth of the ocean in gold.

If St. Vincent's Day (April 5) is fair, there will be more water than wine.

First three days of April foggy, expect a flood in June.

USDA-OK Dept Ag Market News

Oklahoma National Stockyards - Weekly Cattle Summary

Compared to last week: Feeder steers steady. Feeder heifers steady to 2.00 higher, advance on 600-750 lbs. Demand moderate for feeder cattle. Best demand continues to center on steers light enough to feed beyond the discounted summer CME boards. Stocker cattle and calves steady with very good demand. Quality average, few attractive. Feeder cattle in slightly thin to moderate flesh condition. Stockers and calves in thin to medium flesh with few fleshy new crops included. Weigh-ups average. Slaughter cows and bulls steady to 1.00 lower. Demand moderate from packers, extremely good from country buyers. Packers just marking time and hardly able to compete at any figure let alone less as stock cow buyers very aggressive and taking bulk of offerings back to country. Total of 435 cows and bulls sold with only 17 percent to slaughter. Receipts this week 9,569; last week 8,960; last year 10,034. Supply consisted of 75 percent yearlings over 600 lbs; 20 percent calves and short yearlings under 600 lbs; 5 percent cows and bulls. Heifers comprised 40 percent of feeder and calf supply. Prices follow with weighted average weight and price in parenthesis.

The Building you want.
The Lease you need.

Telmark has been leasing equipment for over 35 years. Did you know that we've been leasing new buildings for that long too? Consider:

- Tax deductibility and accelerated deductions: Lease payments are income tax deductible over the term of the lease compared to 20-year depreciation of farm buildings and 39-year depreciation of commercial buildings. Could reduce tax liability this year.
- Low upfront costs: Beginning costs as little as one monthly lease payment.
- Flexible lease term: Building lease terms start aggressively at five years but may be as long as ten, twelve, or fifteen years.
- Customized payment schedules: Lease payment schedules are specially designed to match your cash flow.

First: Talk with a qualified builder to determine your needs and building cost.
Then: Call your Telmark representative for your financing.

OPINION

You Want To Get Mules

Fuel prices have come down a bit. But not enough to reduce the pain in the bottom line of farmers who must get ready to prepare the ground and plant crops this spring. This takes a lot of fuel if you farm with tractors.

But the fuel suppliers whoever they may be, friend or foe, care not about fuel prices and what they do to the American economy. We nearly fell off our editor's chair in mid-March when the first paragraph of an Associated Press article by Mark Babineck caught our attention. The article appeared in our local town paper.

Datelined Huston (heart of oil country, we guess), the paragraph said, "Despite wallet-shrinking prices at gas stations nationwide, history suggests the current record price per gallon is not unusually high when adjusted for inflation."

This statement is true according to the rest of the article. But oh-my, how everyone must view the record LOW prices farmers get for their grains, milk and meat. The farm-gate prices for commodities not only have no room for inflation to be built in; they also have no room for the advancement of time since the 1980's.

Can you picture the outcry of the oil interests if farmers were somehow able to force fuel prices back down to the $.30 to $.60 per gallon some of us old-timers remember. We haven't seen the line-up of cars at gas stations this time around. The oil companies are smarter now. They keep only enough fuel in the pipeline to make sure all the cars (and tractors) can run, but not enough to create a surplus that would help bring prices down.

When we beg our enemies, "please send us more oil," they say they will increase production to make us feel good. But when you see the figures, the increase they promise is still way below the consumption levels of the U.S. economy. Why would they increase production when they have us "over a barrel?" That would be an oil barrel, of course.

Anyway, the whole doggone mess is enough to make you go out and get a team of mules.

Now Is The Time

To Call Before You Dig

Want to pick up a shovel? Planning on digging a ditch? Planning to build a building? Save yourself some trouble. Pick up the phone first and make one call at least three days in advance of the scheduled work.

By making that one call to contact the Utility Location and Coordination Council (ULCC), you can save time, money and maybe your life. The ULCC has a uniform color code that alerts contractors and excavators to utilities in the work area. The council will give you the green light to dig that posthole, put in the new swimming pool, excavate for an addition or move earth for any project. Call before you dig. It is the law. In Pennsylvania call 1-800-242-1776.

To Learn Infrared Aerial Photography

Aerial photography is a new tool to provide information for managing crops, according to Leon Ressler, Lancaster County Agricultural Environmental Extension Agent. This can provide information on soil variability, where diseases and insect pests are concentrated or where drainage problems exist. Color infrared photography is a technique that provides this kind of information for improving crop management. With infrared photography green vegetation appears red. The healthier and more vigorous the growth, the darker the red will be. Sparse vegetation or weak growth will appear as a light red or pink color. Bare soil typically appears as white in the photos. Looking at the color differences in a color infrared image enables one to evaluate the vigor of the crop.

To Use Infrared Photography to Locate Wells

During the summer of 1999 the Lancaster County Geographic Information System Department flew three flights of the entire county to collect color infrared images, reports Leon Ressler, Lancaster County Agricultural Environmental Extension Agent. Due to the severe drought stress the photos revealed information about the underlying geology across the county. Some of the images showed clear evidence of water bearing fractures in the bedrock under the soil surface. Over these fractures the crop condition was more vigorous reflecting the moisture coming from the fracture in the bedrock. Folds in the bedrock are also obvious in some of the images. These photos provide a new tool for locating wells. If you are interested in drilling a well, viewing the images to look for water bearing fractures on your property would be a good first step. While identifying the fractures on the images does not guarantee a strong well, it does increase the probability of finding water. With the high cost of drilling a well any steps you can take to improve the likelihood of a good well are worth the effort. If you are interested in more information on how to use these images for locating your well, contact Penn State Cooperative Extension in Lancaster County at 717-394-6851. The images are available only for Lancaster County at this time.

PREACHING OR MEDDLING

Background Scripture:
1 Corinthians 6:12 through 7:16
Devotional Reading:
1 Corinthians 7:25-35

I'm sure that some of the Corinthians, when they read this portion of Paul's letter, decided that he had progressed from preaching to meddling. It appears that some of them assumed that sexual practices were outside the province and concern of the Christian faith. What I do with my body, they reasoned, does not affect my spirit.

They had written him on a number of problems that were dividing the church: marriage (7:1), food offered to idols (8:1), spiritual gifts (12:1), the contribution to the saints (16:1), and the role of Apollos (16:12). So, Paul says, "Now concerning the matters about which you wrote" (7:1). He is responding to specific Corinthian problems.

Christ is Coming!

Secondly, Paul is convinced that the return of Christ is immanent, coloring much of the advice that he gives for it is based upon what will keep them spiritual ready for Christ's return. We need to remember too that he distinguishes between those teachings that have come to him from the Lord and those which come strictly from him (7:10, 12).

Some of what Paul is teaching here, then, is dependent upon the situation– "To the unmarried and the widows I say that it is well for them to remain single as I do. But if they cannot exercise self control, they should marry." If he didn't believe that "the form of this world is passing away," it is doubtful that he would have given this because it is at variance with the teaching of the Old Testament: "It is not good that the man should be alone" (Gen. 2:18) and rabbis considered that marriage was an unqualified duty for a man. Paul's "It is not well for a man to touch a woman" (7:1) is not for all time. So, in this period just prior to Christ's return, he taught that it is best for people to remain as they are, unless the sexual impulse made marriage a better choice.

Some of his teachings, however, were not dependent upon the immanent return of Christ and are still authoritative for us. Paul's teaches that acts of the physical body do affect the human spirit, both negatively and positively. Along with contemporary Jews and the Old Testament, he believed that a person was not divided into three separate entities as the Greeks believed. The person was a mind-body-spirit, all one being and essence. So these are not separate and what affects one aspect of our self affects all others. "Do you not know," Paul asks, "that he who joins himself to a prostitute becomes one body with her?" (6:16). These are not just physical acts, they are spiritual realities as well.

Depths of Intimacy

Furthermore, "Do you not know that you body is a temple of the Holy Spirit...?" (6:19). Casual sex does not "go away" because it is over so soon, but because it reaches the depths of intimacy, the effects of that intimacy remain with us and our sexual partners. Rather than condemning sex, he speaks forcefully for it within the intimate bonds of marriage. "The husband should give to his wife her conjugal rights, and likewise the wife to her husband...Do not refuse one another except perhaps by agreement for a season, that you may devote yourselves to prayer"(7:3-5)– mutual consent.

Paul gives us two principles to help us. First, "'All things are lawful for me,' but not all things are helpful"–helpful to me, to you, to others and society at large. Sex outside the bonds of marriage may seem right and good to two people, but in the long run it breaks down people and society.

The second principle is also vital: "'All things are lawful for me,' but I will not be enslaved by anything." (7:12). If I give in to this temptation, am I likely to become enslaved by it? The answer all too often is 'YES!' Alcohol, drugs, food and sex are able to enslave us so easily that we are no longer in a position to enjoy freedom, because we have lost the ability to choose.

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

By Ken Bailey
Penn State University
March 24, 2000

U.S. Imports of Dairy Products up in1999

Dollar value of dairy imports exceeds exports in 1999

Quota and non-quota cheese imports up

U S. cheese prices stable, butter prices higher

USDA just released numbers for imports and exports for 1997-99 this week. The numbers show that higher U.S. prices for butter and cheese attracted more imports of dairy products. U.S. trade agreements allow imports into this country above certain levels if higher tariffs are paid. Record high prices for butter in 1998 and cheese in 1999 allowed that to happen.

Cheese prices at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange this week were relatively flat. Blocks traded between $1.1050 and $1.11 per pound; barrels were stuck at $1.0925 per pound. NASS prices for cheese were more interesting.

For the week ending March 18, prices for 40-pound block cheese in Minnesota and Wisconsin averaged $1.1457 per pound, whereas cheese prices everywhere else (mainly the West) were $1.0861 per pound. The average for the U.S.=

was $1.1004 per pound, just at the support price level.

Butter prices were trending higher this week at the Chicago Mercantile= Exchange. Grade AA butter was $0.9850 per pound on Monday, March 20, and= was $1.11 per pound by Friday, March 24. The NASS survey price of butter for the week ending March 18 was $0.9520 per pound, reflecting week-to-week increases in butter prices. According to USDA, cream availability is tightening, butter production is lower, and buyer interest is seasonally good.

USDA also released cold storage numbers this week Butter stocks at the end of February 2000 were 92.4 million pounds, 2.7 percent lower than a year ago but 26.8 percent higher than January 2000. Natural American cheese holdings were 515.8 million pounds, 11.0

Ideal Leaf Tobacco Co. is Buying Good 609 Tobacco.
Ideal Leaf is processing this tobacco because we believe you can make a good profit on a small investment. Any farmer or investor that wants to put some money in this project please give us a call.
The local farmers in Lancaster can join in this project by delivering 609 tobacco for processing to Ideal Leaf Tobacco Co. We believe the local farmer has two choices: to sell the 1999 crop or to process it.
There is no guaranteed price on the processed tobacco return, but at least we have a chance of getting a better return. We are now making a list of the farmers who are going to process with Ideal Leaf because we are receiving processed tobacco and setting delivery dates for others. We will receive processed tobacco Until April 7, 2000.

CORN AND LIQUID NITROGEN APPLICATION ISSUES

Mark Goodson
Agronomy Extension Agent
York County

Each year farmers have to make decisions about nitrogen fertilization of their corn. It's that time again. This article will focus on pros and cons of various popular methods of liquid N application.

•Field nitrogen losses. Soils tend to lose nitrogen easily – this is a simple fact of nature. Soil testing labs, including Penn State's, do not even test for nitrogen because, by the time the sample gets to the lab, the nitrogen is lost to the air. Soils lose nitrogen through volatilization (evaporation) of ammonia to the air and through leaching (percolation with water down away from root zone) of nitrate. Losing nitrogen either way costs the farmer money and could hurt the environment, including his own drinking water well. The earlier that nitrogen is applied to the field before the crop actually takes it up, the more vulnerable it is to field losses.

•Liquid nitrogen. 30 percent nitrogen solution ("liquid N", UAN, or "Nitan") is urea and ammonium nitrate dissolved in water. This popular, inexpensive and versatile fertilizer is usually applied at planting or as sidedressing. It is easy to handle with pumps and hoses and often the lowest cost material per unit N.

Some of the nitrogen in liquid N is from urea and prone to volatilization. Volatilization of N from urea occurs when urea is not incorporated either by rain or light tillage.

Once in the soil, most of the N converts into nitrate within a week or two The nitrate form of nitrogen is easily leached and can be lost through percolation if crops do not use it before rainfall pushes it out of the reach of roots.

•Preplant versus preemerge seedbed application. Placing all the nitrogen in the seedbed, either worked in at seedbed preparation or applied with preemergence chemicals before the corn emerges, is popular because it gets the chore of N application done early in the season. Incorporating liquid N lightly into the seedbed just before planting is preferable to applying with chemicals after planting because it eliminates the chance for N to volatilize if timely rains do not come. Each day that passes without rain to incorporate the N increase the amount that is lost through volatilization to the atmosphere. However, applying nitrogen during seedbed preparation requires an additional trip over the field compared to N application with preemergence pesticides.

•Seedbed versus sidedress application. Sidedressing is often promoted because nitrogen is applied close to the time of plant uptake. This is good, sound agronomy. However, it requires a trip through the field when the corn is up. Application equipment availability is also an issue in some parts of the region. In some cases, your local commercial custom applicator may have all of their row equipment on herbicide work at sidedressing time. If sidedressing equipment is available, consider applying most of your N this way.

To Transfer Farm Estate: Communicate, Seek Advice, And Begin Early

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

GAP (Lancaster Co.) — There are no "cookbook" recipes for passing on the farm, according to the director of a family farm transfer advocacy group.

But several things are critical, according to Marion L. Bowlan, executive director of Pennsylvania Farm Link: early planning for the transfer of the estate, open communication, and seeking the right legal advice.

Bowlan and several estate transfer planning experts spoke Wednesday to about 74 landowners and potential farm owners at the Passing On The Farm Workshop at the Gap Diner in Gap.

Bowlan quoted USDA statistics nationwide: the average net return for a typical farm is about $23,000, which provides only marginal living. An even more striking statistic: though 90 percent of farms in Pennsylvania are owned by the family, only 30 percent are successfully transferred to the second generation, 15 percent to the third, and only 6 percent to the fourth.

Pennsylvania Farm Link, noted Bowlan, is a nonprofit organization in its third year of operation dedicated to creating farming opportunities for the next generation. The organization includes a board of directors assembled from farms, the American Farmland Trust, Penn State Cooperative Extension, the state Grange, the state departments of agriculture and education, Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, and other groups.

The program began as a way to link prospective younger farmers with those farmers who were retiring. But since then, services have been expanded to include an educational component and workshops to address the issues of family farm estate transfers.

A new apprentice program will involve a dozen farmers who volunteered to work with high school kids on educating and training the "next generation" about farming, Bowlan noted.

Bowlan said that according to 1997 statistics, 17 percent of farm operators are 70 years or older and only 8 percent are age 35 or under. Increasingly, programs such as Farm Link are needed to help the younger generation become involved in farming.

First, though, family and sibling issues need to be discussed. Family members need to talk openly about potential transfers before financial or legal consultants are brought into the picture.

Transferring the farm involves three universal decisions: one, working out a method to provide adequate retirement income; two, treating all children equitably in the decision; and third, managing the succession so the next generation won't be saddled with unreasonable debts.

"These are all very difficult issues," said Bowlan. "There are no easy answers. A lot of discussion will determine the success of the farm transfer."

DUPONT®

If you were to ask local corn growers about Basis Gold® this is what they would say:

"With four years of Basis Gold® use on our farm, I have learned that the best corn herbicide program is 1 pt. of Dual at planting followed with Basis Gold® + 3 oz. of Banvel. This has eliminated Fall panicum problems and does what I like to see done to Canada thistle.

Basis Gold® saves me money and eliminates the crop damage from late post broadleaf herbicides too.*

This year Basis Gold® will be on all 600 acres of our conventional corn and no-till corn."

Eddie Taylor
Andelot Farm
Worton, MD

"I have been farming most of my 57 years; Basis Gold® is the best weed control I have ever experienced.

One-trip Basis Gold® cut in half my bill for hard-to-control weeds. No Velvetleaf, Lambsquarters, Quackgrass or Fall panicum. We did not need to re-spray any of the 1,400 acres of Basis Gold®.

Unlike what I have experienced in the past, Basis Gold® did not hold my corn back, which resulted in higher yields, earlier maturity and lower drying costs. Basis Gold® saved me a lot of money this way too."

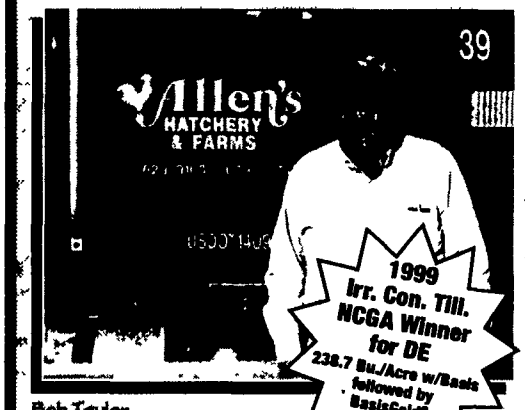
Henry Everman
Henry G. Everman Farms
Dansville, NY



Bob Taylor
Allen's Hatchery & Farms
Stanford, DE

"It was a difficult year for weed control in most corn fields in this area last year; several growers saw our corn fields and wanted to know what we used to keep them so clean.

We switched to Basis Gold® on almost all 2,300 acres of corn. Our main programs was .33 oz. Basis + 1 lb. Princep in March after we deep ripped, then followed with 14 oz. Basis Gold® + 2 qt. nitrogen + crop oil on 6 inch corn.

One of our irrigated corn hybrids with Basis Gold® - averaged 226.69 bushels on 165.4 acres. We would like to stay with what works, and will be using the same weed control this year."

Glen Gannon
Cecil H. Gannon and Sons, Inc.
Easton, MD

"We used total post weed control on 1800 acres of corn. Our Basis Gold® program on 600 acres was one trip with 14 oz Basis Gold® + 3 oz Banvel for Fall panicum, Foxtails and Canada thistle.

We have found we are only fooling ourselves thinking we can use a full rate of a pre-product then trying to spot spray to clean up escapes; we usually realize at harvest that we should have resprayed all the acres postemerge.

Based on our Basis Gold® results, present thinking is to use at least as much Basis Gold® this year and will likely increase to 1,200 acres of Basis Gold® on this years corn crop. The residual advantage in Basis Gold® is important to us."

"Our NCGA winning entry came from an old cow pasture field that has soil with excellent moisture holding capacity and is loaded with lots of weed seeds including giant ragweed plus several different kinds of grasses; I figured ahead of time it would take a two pass program to end up with clean corn.

Basis Gold® cleaned the field up and it did not effect the corn at all. Basis Gold® is a great value too."*

Paul J. Hlubik
Backacres Farms
Jacobstown, NJ

"Our experience was with 14 oz. Basis Gold® + 4 oz. Banvel on 1,200 acres where we expected the worst weed problems like Fall panicum & triazine resistant weeds. We used one trip with Basis Gold® on conventional tillage and applied Princep early followed by Basis Gold® + Banvel postemergence on no-till. Basis Gold® worked well and is a lower cost program than what we had been using.

We like how Basis Gold® enables us to use fewer plastic jugs and get away from the liability of carrying bulk herbicides on our trucks. We also like the way the corn jumps out of the ground with a Basis Gold® program.

It was our best irrigated corn crop ever. We keep learning more about how to do it right every year; our two best irrigated hybrids treated with Basis Gold® averaged about 230 bushels/acre. I see more Basis Gold® planned this year."

T.J. Schiff
Schiff Farms
Harrington, DE

Dennis Byrne
Herr Angus Farms
Nottingham, PA

"Last year our corn yields weren't the best because of the dry weather. Our weed control program gave us clean corn despite the dry weather. This is the second year we used Basis Gold® for problem weeds like Lambsquarters, Foxtail, Shattercane and Johnsongrass. We will be using Basis Gold® again for the third straight year."

Tom Frey, President
Frey Dairy Farms, Inc.
Conestoga, PA

"What was frustrating me was the large number of acres we were spraying twice. Our pre-emergence sprays were failing. I was looking for a better way. Then we tried Basis Gold®. Since using Basis Gold®, we've done very little re-spraying. Weed control isn't always perfect, but it is very acceptable. For three years Basis Gold® has been our main herbicide program. We will use it again this year on our 700 acres of field corn.

Lancaster District Awards 'Standout' Conservation Efforts

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Conservation farms should stand out.

In the case of Jack and Donna Coleman's Cherry-Crest Dairy Farm in Paradise, their Amazing Maize Maze welcomed more than 50,000 people during the past year's hot, dry summer.

Even more amazing, from an airplane, the farm stood out. Observers from the air could easily identify the distinctive American flag created with 14,000 red, white, and blue petunias.

"At the top of the flag, it's easy to see this is a conservation farm," said Gerald Heistand, director of agricultural operations for the Lancaster Conservation District.

The theme for the maze itself was the "Land of Liberty," in the shape of Pennsylvania, comprising four stars and a huge Liberty Bell in the center.

The Colemans were a standout last week when they were honored with the Outstanding Cooperator of the Year Award by the Lancaster County Conservation District.

More than 200 attended the district banquet last week at Yoder's Restaurant in New Holland.

The Colemans "are true farmers with a heart for milking cows and raising crops," said Heistand, who, with a slide show presentation, spoke about the work of the farm.

Jack Coleman began crop farming in New Jersey and started dairy farming when he moved to Lancaster County in 1987. His expertise in growing crops is evidenced by standout corn yields in the Pennsylvania Five-Acre Corn club. According to Heistand, in 1996 Coleman was the first in the state to have the highest three-year corn yield average at more than 213 bushels per acre.

Cherry-Crest Dairy Farm consists of 70 milking cows on DHIA, which raises 250,000 boilers per year, and 175 acres (113 owned) of land on which to grow the crops.

Coleman grows 70 acres of corn, 50 acres of soybeans, 40 acres of hay, 20 acres of barley and other crops, 10 acres in pasture, and five acres for the farmstead.

Growing good crops requires a standout management plan. A rye cover crop is planted with appropriate amounts of dairy or poultry manure applied to the land, Heistand noted. "Jack is a real manager of nutrients, and does not allow any field to be left bare over the winter," according to Heistand.

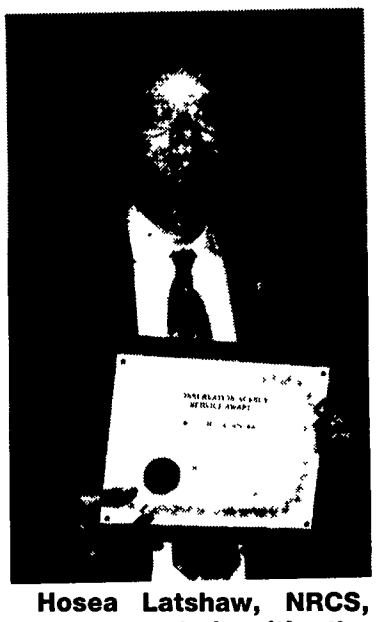
Chiseling the rye down allows it to slowly release the nutrients as it decomposes, so the newly growing corn plant can use the nutrients.

When the fields are wet, "Jack is often the last one in the field," Heistand said. Jack "works closely with his agronomist and does not add commercial fertilizer other than micronutrients."

The farmhouse and barn were built in 1774 by Phillip Feree, a Conestoga Wagon maker. The farm has been improved since. Contours were put on the farm in 1958. In 1987, Coleman signed as a cooperator with the district to install a manure handling system with the aid of the Chesapeake Bay Program.

The watershed on the north side of the railroad has about 70 acres requiring surface water control. A waterway and basin with 1,000 feet of pipe were added to provide that control.

In 1997, 3,200 feet of terraces and 1,810 feet of pipe were installed with the aid of the Environmental Quality Incentive Program. Coleman did much of the pipework himself after purchasing his own backhoe.



Hosea Latshaw, NRCS, was presented with the Conservation Agency Service Award.

Coleman "has a philosophy that you are never finished with your farm's conservation program," Heistand noted. "Flowers now grow on the steep slopes that used to grow corn!"

The Colemans provide tours of the farm. And the people on the tour "learn about where milk comes from," said Heistand. 'It's a true operating dairy farm."

The Colemans are active in their community and support agriculture. They have completed Ag in the Classroom presentations and they educate the many tourists that come to their farm. Nonprofit organizations are allowed to have a food stand at the maze at no costs.

The farm, with pick-your-own mums, popcorn, or pumpkins, allows the Colemans to educate the consumer and provide "a positive image for Lancaster County agriculture," Heistand noted.

"Even the hay (fields are) placed on contour," Heistand said.

Donna Coleman noted this year's theme for the maze will be "Lost In Space" with a solar system theme.

Other awards were presented at the banquet.

Lucy and Roman Stoltzfoos were honored with a Soil Stewardship Award last week at the Lancaster County Conservation District banquet.

Soil Stewardship Award

The Soil Stewardship Award for 2000 was presented to Spring Wood Farm, operated by the Roman Stoltzfoos in Christiana, eastern Lancaster County.

The farm, a standout intensive grazing operation in the county, is a grass-based seasonal organic dairy that grows 9,000 organic turkeys, also seasonally, according to Kevin Seibert, nutrient management specialist with the district. All the owned acres — 150 — and rented acreage — 100 — are in intensively managed grass. One-hundred cows are milked on a mostly seasonal basis.

The family includes Roman, wife Lucy, and nine children: Dwight, 20; Hilda, 18; Delmar, 14; Charlene, 12; Clifford; Joshua, 8; Caleb, 6; Althea, 4; and Raphael, 1.

Conservation and water quality practices include stream bank fencing, stabilized with crossings, conversion of all ground into grass, and composting collected manure into high quality compost for retail and wholesale sales.

The 250-acre farm has been in the family for three generations. The farm was purchased in 1944 by Roman's grandfather and then passed to his father. Roman's father recognized the importance of conservation practices, including terraces.

Roman continues conservation work with best management practices such as barnyard runoff controls, stream bank fencing, composting, and converting tilled land into sod, Seibert noted.

All acres farmed are in intensively managed grass. The terraces installed long ago are covered with sod.

Ag CoOps Focus Of USDA, Farmers Union Effort

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Officials from the USDA Rural Development announced the signing of an agreement to work with the National Farmers Union (NFU) and Michigan Farmers Union to cooperate in the promotion and utilization of programs and activities aimed at starting new agricultural cooperatives and developing rural businesses.

The organizations signed the partnership agreement in an effort to continue and enhance their strong and beneficial working relationship.

"By working cooperatively with USDA Rural Development state and area offices, we are further equipped to assist producer groups in the preparation of various projects involving agricultural cooperatives, value-added processing, rural business development, and in launching a variety of innovative co-ops," said NFU President Leland Swenson.

"It is important that rural cooperatives are given every opportunity to access and use USDA rural development programs to assist in the creation and expansion of economic opportunities to the fullest extent possible," said Donald L. Hare, state director for USDA rural development operations in Michigan.

"These agreements unite the shared missions of our organizations to serve rural America and help family farmers and rural citizens succeed through the promotion of economic and cooperative development, particularly the formation of value-added processing and marketing cooperatives," said Carl McIlvain, Michigan Farmers Union President, Hastings, Mich.

Rural development is a mission area within USDA responsible for administering various rural housing, business, industry and rural community development loan and grant programs.

FARM TIRES
THE LEADER IN THE FIELD

By communicating these issues early, the program directed said, the family can learn what each member is about.

"The most important thing is to sit down and talk with family members," she said. But the father and mother who sell the farm shouldn't have high income expectations if they want the next generation, their children, to be successful. "It's very difficult to get the market value for the farm and expect the farm children to be successful," Bowlan said.

Many businesses and more partnerships "fail over the human relationships than over the business," she said. So it's important to involve ALL of the family members in the decision.

Most farmers, she noted, between the age of 35-55 want to start owning assets. If they don't have the assets between those ages, they "will leave the farm," she said. Get those agreements in writing. Involve the spouses and partners, assume nothing, make clear the expectations, use the best legal and accounting advisers available, measure progress, review what you have written often, reexamine ongoing assumptions, and involve spouses early and completely.

Poor communication, said Bowlan, is "90 percent of business problems."

And communication is more than talking. It involves listening. Even at conferences, those attending often hear only about 25 percent of what is said, noted Bowlan.

Farm owners should get past the "unquestioned tradition" that the son automatically inherits the farm. Passing on the farm to daughters is increasingly common.

The average age of the farm owner, at time of transfer to the next generation, is 57 years. But the older generation waits sometimes too long to "let go," Bowlan said. The key is to offer the transfer as a way of preserving a way of life — not looking for maximum financial gain.

And new farm owners should take time to have meetings with the partners to talk about strategies. At those meetings, Bowlan said, don't discuss religion or politics. But also spend a few days a month on outside interests to gain perspective on the business.

Bit by bit, the older generation can involve younger members in the farm operation. Allow, early on, the purchase of farm animals and machinery. Allow the younger generation to make major business purchases in line with an established farm plan.

Some experts agreed that perhaps the age of 40 would be a good time to begin incremental steps to slowly allocate the farm estate, bit by bit, to avoid huge inheritance taxes.

According to Samuel A. Goodley, shareholder in the firm of Byler, Goodman, and Goodley, planning is critical "so the heirs will not get hurt with estate and death taxes," he said. Estate and gift taxes can be avoided if the planning is done early and the transfer occurs over a gradual period.

Goodley believes in the expression, "do your giving while you're living," he said. By transmitting values incrementally over a period of time serves as a sort of tax shelter from state and federal inheritance taxes.

head, mostly Holstein, with Dutch Belted and Jersey. The milking herd, including the replacements, is grazed through the growing season and fed stored grass when land cannot be grazed.

The cows serve as the farm's harvesters and manure spreaders.

Stoltzfoos, who has traveled to New Zealand to see how their dairy industry operates, incorporated some of those practices. The farm has been recognized by the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA) with the Pennsylvania Sustainable Agriculture Leadership Award.

Youth Conservation School, Other Awards

Charlotte Sprenkle, environmental education coordinator for the district, presented a skit honoring Bob Good, Lititz, noted angler, with a special Youth Conservation School honor.

L. Nevin Greiner, resource conservationist in the erosion and sedimentation division, presented a Building Industry Conservation Award to Michael Mountz, owner of Cloister Car Wash and Lube, for new construction on Manheim Pike In Lancaster.

The land was formerly the site of Kerek Air Freight and is home to Cloister's third car wash. The award was presented to recognize individuals credited with "conserving Lancaster County farmland through adaptive redevelopment," said Greiner.

Greiner noted that development in Pennsylvania has proven to be land consumptive. For example, during 1992-1997, Pennsylvania developed 224,640 acres of land each year. The state ranks second only to Texas in the total number of acres of land developed in the same period.

Greiner noted in a book by Tom Hylton that documents since the 1950s, Pennsylvania lost four million acres of farmland to urban sprawl — a land mass equal to the size of the states of Connecticut and Rhode Island. The land conversion provided for only a 20 percent population increase in those 50 years.

When Mountz purchased the land, the lot was covered entirely with buildings and paving. The design team removed a large portion of paving and replaced it with topsoil. Today, of the 3.5 acres, 23 percent has been landscaped. Stormwater is not collected, but released slowly.

Also, the waste oil recovered in the lube shop is fuel for the energy to heat the water in the car wash.

Conservation Service Award

Ken Meck, on the board of the district directors, presented the year's Conservation Service Award to Terry L. Kauffman.

Kauffman, who has participated in the business and public sector at various levels for more than 25 years, has served in leadership roles in service clubs, on the local township zoning hearing board, and has been involved on the county planning commission. He has chaired the election board of the Lancaster County and the registration commission. He has served as a board member in the conservation district from 1996-1999 and for the county library and agriculture systems.

Elected a county commissioner in 1992 and again in 1996, Kauffman chaired the board of commissioners from 1995-1999 and was vice chairman from 1992-1995.

Kauffman serves as director of land use planning and management with the Berks County Conservancy.

Educator Of Year Award

Jim and Lee Amigh are the recipients of this year's Educator of the Year Award, presented by Robert Lauffer, vice chairman of the district board of directors.

Jim is a physical education teacher for the elementary schools of Penn Manor School District and is certified in environmental education.

Lee is a naturalist for Lancaster County Parks.

Both are central figures behind the creation of the Elementary Envirothon in Lancaster County, Lauffer noted.

Six years ago, according to Lauffer, Jim and Lee met with the York County Conservation District and observed how the district orchestrated the Elementary Envirothon. The Amighs returned to form a committee and began planning for a local competition the following year.

The Lancaster County Elementary Envirothon began with a handful of teams from the Penn Manor School District only. Five years later the Envirothon involved more than 300 students during two days with 48 third through sixth grade teams representing six school districts.

"It's safe to say that Jim and Lee Amigh live and breathe the Elementary Envirothon," said Lauffer.

Conservation Agency Service Award

The conservation district honored Hosea Latshaw with the Conservation Agency Service Award.

The Natural Resource Conservation Service (NRCS) is the district's closest working partner, noted Don Robinson, district administrator. Latshaw, from the Lebanon area technical office, reviews all the district staff's designs in a "most efficient manner, coordinates much or our training, and assists in assigning engineering job approval authority ratings for our staff," said Robinson.

"His concern and nurturing approach to each technician and engineer puts you in mind of your favorite teacher or professor," Robinson said. "He accompanies our staff to the field, observes their abilities, and challenges them to bring their own ideas and insights into the designing process."

Latshaw, noted Robinson, encourages by taking time to recognize an individual's outstanding work and sends letters praising the individual. "This kind of attention makes our employees want to strive to improve and grow professionally," Robinson said.

"His encouragements and suggestions to management helps keep us all striving to be efficient, recognize personal achievement, and to improve our professional development," said Robinson.

Watershed Award

The Paradise Sportsmen Association was honored with the district's Watershed Award, presented by Gerald Heistand, district director of agricultural operations.

The association recently completed a stream improvement project on Londonland Run in Paradise Township, located on the John S. Fisher farm on both sides of Quarry Road.

The first phase of this stream restoration project required approximately 350 hours of labor. Volunteers built and installed fish improvement structures to stop erosion, create deeper water, and provide more oxygen for the fish. In addition, they reseeded bare areas and mulched it.

The second phase of the project, noted Heistand, was recently completed. Fencing keeps cattle out of the stream. It allows vegetation to grow and keeps cattle from stirring up mud from the bottom.

The club conducts an annual fishing derby in May. Last year approximately 487 children took part. The streams were stocked with about 1,500-2,000 fish. The fishing derby has been conducted for more than 25 years.

Dewey Hull, vice president of the association, and other association members built a new trout nursery in 1998 along Keneagy Hill Road. The club raises an additional 4,000- 5,000 trout each year to stock in local streams.

The association was formed in 1936 and boasts more than 400 members. According to Heistand, they "have truly become stewards of the land."

Conservation Promotion Award

Brubaker Agronomic Consulating Service (BACS), according to Jere Swarr, a district director, has "gone out of its way to promote an awareness of and the need for conservation practices and the use of nutrient management planning."

Under the direction of company president, Mike Brubaker, and nutrient management manager Bill Rogers, BACS promotes the need for conservation practices.

BACS has worked "diligently," according to Swarr, to foster a good relationship with farmers and the district. Through radio spots and magazine columns, the company promotes the message of conservation.

Also, Amos Funk provided a historical perspective of the district and the efforts of the hard working, dedicated district personnel.

Funk provided some anecdotes and insight into the district's founding, from Feb. 24, 1950 when the county commissioners created the district, when Funk became a charter member, until today. It took seven years for the district to get appropriations from the commissioners.

Funk noted that the current district, with a budget approaching $900,000, employs 19. He spoke about those who served the district and some who served at the state and national level.

Funk urged those who promote conservation to continue to tell the important story. And it's important to attract young people to continue to deliver the message that conservation farming brings.

FUTURES MARKETS

percent higher than a year ago and 7.4 percent more than January 2000. Clearly more milk is being translated into more butter and cheese, and part of that is ending up in the form of higher stocks.

Now for the more interesting news. A number of dairy farmers have asked me to look at import levels for dairy products. USDA just released dairy trade numbers.

First, some background. Imports and exports of dairy products are regulated by our world trade agreements. The idea is you open your borders, and we'll open ours. We agreed to convert our import quotas (fixed amounts of trade) to tariffs. You can import various dairy products into the U.S. at reduced tariff rates (essentially a tax), but only within a certain quota. Beyond that quota level, imports are subjected to a very high tariff.

Likewise, we have greater access to the European market, and can export butteroil and nonfat dry milk using our Dairy Export Incentive Program (DEIP). Remember, trade works both ways!

Under our trade agreements, we agreed to raise our import quotas over time. That will result in greater imports. And, we agreed to phase out our DEIP program. But we also have (in theory) greater access to overseas markets.

The numbers in Tables 3 and 4 below show quantities and values of imports and exports of various dairy products. For the most part, we only trade in dairy products, not liquid milk products. The data show imports rising and exports being relatively flat. Imports are especially high for butter (in 1998), cheese (in 1998 and 1999), and milk protein concentrate.

What's going on here? Well, it should be of no surprise that record high butter prices (in 1998) and record high cheese prices (in 1998 and 1999) resulted in greater imports. This is especially true when world prices were lower than U.S. prices. The U.S. became a magnet to world imports.

Even with very high tariff rates, it was profitable to import product into the U.S and still pay the high tariff rates.

What is alarming is that there appears to be a trend towards more and more net imports (net imports are equal to imports less exports). I am quoting this figure in dollar values. It is very difficult to look at net trade on a milk eqivalent basis (what is the equivalent amount of raw milk that we imported?). In 1997 net imports were $122.3 million. But 1999 net imports were $404.9 million. That's an increase of 231 percent.

Now, for some perspective. U.S. sales of milk at the farm level are typically $22-24 billion a year. In 1999 we produced 162.711 billion pounds of milk and the U.S. all-milk price was $14.37 per cwt. Thus farm milk sales in 1999 were $23.38 billion. Imports net of exports on a dollar value in 1999 were 1.73 percent of the value of U.S. milk production. It's hard to argue whether that is a lot, or a little.

But the bigger question is what will happen this year? My guess is that imports will slow down considerably due to record low U.S. milk prices.

Who would import above quota levels and pay those very high tariff rates when U.S. prices are so low?

My conclusion from this very quick review of the data is that higher imports were the result of high domestic prices. Likewise, low domestic milk prices should lower imports. If this is true, imports did not cause milk prices to fall; this had more to do with continued growth in the U.S. milk supply

Question: We are debating the need for a prefresh diet for our heifers. What are some indicators that would tell us if this management change would be beneficial?

When this question came in, I checked some PA DHIA records before giving an answer. I always recommend a transition or prefresh diet for all animals before their next calving. I believe this is especially beneficial for heifers that calve for the first time, due to all the changes that happen to them during this period. What are some statistical indicators that lead me to this conclusion?

One place where I evaluate heifer performance and how well prepared the heifers are to become cows is found on the third section down on Herd Summary II. Here we see "Profile of Cows by Lactation Number." Near the center of the page is a column that states the average days to peak and the average milk at peak. As we compare days to peak in this particular herd, we see a large contrast between older cows and first lactation heifers. The second lactation cows reach peak at 80 days and the older ones at 60. In contrast, we see that the first lactation heifers take 130 days to reach peak. It is normal for heifers to reach peak slower than their older counterparts, but certainly not this slow. Past first lactation, cows should reach peak milk production two to three weeks ahead of reaching peak dry matter intake. With this bit of knowledge, we recognize the need for proper body reserves and transition diets can reduce the weight loss that is seen as cows reach peak around 60 days in milk. Heifers that obviously are going through more changes at this time usually hit peak milk a bit later at 75 to 85 days in milk. The heifers that are peaking much later than this are telling us we have not prepared them very well to be milk cows.

Another evaluation that tells us if we are meeting the needs of these changing animals is looking at some reproductive performance parameters and how they differ from one age group to another. Again, we use our PA DHIA Herd Summary II for this information. The second section down is the "Reproductive Profile of Breeding Herd." Going right to left we come across the column labeled average days to 1st service. This herd again shows great disparity between first lactation and older cows. Performance differs little between second lactation and older cows with the average days to first service at 110. When we look at the first lactation animals, we see a substantial difference. Noting that the performance of the older cows can be improved reproductively, the first lactation animals show a more severe problem. Here we see these cows being bred for the first time at over 160 days. When we see that the first lactation cows make up 45% of the herd, it is no wonder the overall herd reproductive performance is not at all what we would like.

These two evaluations do not exclusively point to problems caused by the lack of a transition period. Bunk management and grouping needs can be indicated when first lactation performance lags behind the rest of the herd. The numbers seen for this herd suggest that the lack of a prefresh period might initiate problems as these new animals come into the herd. Certainly, getting off to a good start by proper preparation should be your first step.

PA DHIA offers a consultation service to address these types of concerns. For those of you who are testing for MUN, you have the opportunity for a free farm visit that will help in record evaluation. Remember, these are your cows evaluation what you do...and sometimes what you do not do.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Brubakers Receive Prestigious Environmental Award

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) — Luke Brubaker and sons Mike and Tony recently received the prestigious 1999 National Tyson Poultry Environmental Award for environmental quality practices installed here.

The Brubakers were one of five farms chosen throughout the country for implementing conservation best management practices to improve the environment.

Don Robinson, administrator for the Lancaster County Conservation District, said industries, including pork and poultry, "are becoming very much aware of their environmental responsibility." The Tyson-sponsored award helps bring an "awareness to the nonagricultural community that farmers are doing the right thing."

Luke, in partnership with sons Mike, 33, and Tony, 28, manage about 800 tillable acres, including rented land, and maintain 470 cows. The Brubakers manage 250,000 boilers under Tyson contract per year.

Two of the three farms are under farmland preservation, noted Luke. Another is on the farmland preservation waiting list.

Chairman of the county Farm Service Agency, Brubaker said that it's "good for our people to try to get into the 'winners' circle.' The farmers are good stewards of the land."

Mike and Tony Brubaker received the award in Arkansas in February.

Brubaker was one of 22 landowners on 6.7 miles of the creek who contributed to the Donegal Creek Restoration Project, conducted over a three-year period in the late '90s. The project included stream restoration work such as creek fencing, streambed stabilization, stream habitat improvement, and other projects. In all, said Brubaker, the farm implemented 17 best management practices. Included is a wellhead protection area crucial to improving water quality on the farm.

The farm, the "centerpiece of the award," said Robinson of the conservation district, included tree planting along the side of the creek in addition to creek narrowing, to help keep the stream water cool and speed up the flow to accommodate trout and other species.

It's a "very prestigious honor," said Robinson.

In December, a team of Tyson judges arrived from company headquarters in Springdale, Ark. on corporate jet to analyze the farm operations and learn about the practices to improve the environment.

Said Brubaker, "We're not just doing something better than anybody else. There are a lot of good farms — we're not the only ones who are doing it. We're just thankful for everybody's help."

Brubaker noted that many different agencies were involved in the partnership to improve the stream, including township officials, USDA, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, the conservation district, Donegal Fish and Conservation Association, and others. The partnership of various groups makes a "perfect mix," he said.

"There are so many good things for farmers to participate in," Brubaker said. The agencies are "hoping to promote programs for farmers to do environmentally sound things."

Large family farms such as the Brubaker operation are "lightning rods for environmental conservation," said Robinson.

Maryland Holstein Members Honored At Annual Banquet

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

GRANTSVILLE, Md. — The Garrett County Holstein Club recently hosted the annual Maryland Holstein Convention banquet. During the banquet, outstanding members and junior members were recognized.

More than 300 members and guests gathered into the Salisbury, Pa., firehall for the banquet, which was themed "Mooving Into The New Moollennium With Holsteins." Sharon Mast and Martha Bender coordinated the banquet for the annual convention.

During the meeting, the club recognized first and second placed 4-H dairy judging teams. The first place team attended the national competition in Louisville. The members of that team were Brett Haines, Josh Sanders, Jeff Sutton, and Amanda Valentine, with coach Lee Majeskie and assistant coach Anne Davis.

The second place team was Tommy Smith, Jill Torene, Gary Brauning, and Justin Watt. The 4-H Dairy Bowl Team was also recognized. Those members included Mary Archer, Ryan Downey, Erin Shank, and Michael Spurrier. The team coach was Mark Varner, with Terrie Shank serving as assistant coach.

Scholarship recipients were also honored during the evening. Arthur and Peggy Johnson presented the scholarships to Amy Iager, Jessica Fritz, Sarah Bedgar, and Kristin Myers.

Recipients of the Junior, Intermediate, and Senior Awards for Distinguished Junior Members were also recognized during the banquet. Amy Iager and Barbara Schenning were named Distinguished Junior Members for the club.

As part of the program, junior member Kelly Burrier delivered the winning speech in the Intermediate Holstein Speaking Contest. Jacob Leach gave the winning speech in the Junior division. Junior production awards were also presented at the meeting.

Morris Jones, a retired farmer from South Carolina, was the guest speaker. Gary Yoder of McHenry, Md., was the toastmaster. After the awards presentation, Denny Remburg of Jefferson, Md., hosted a fun auction.

A beautiful Holstein Cow quilt made by Naomi Yoder was on display during the evening to encourage people to attend the sale auction held on Saturday. Half of the proceeds from the quilt will be donated to a local man battling cancer.

Maryland Senior Winners inclued Bret Haines, Katherine Herbst, Amy Iager, Barbara Schenning, Gary Brauning, and Justin Watt.

Wenger Rallies To Bury The Death Tax

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) – A measure that would cut Pennsylvania's inheritance tax by $100 million was approved by the state Senate Finance Committee, according to state Sen. Noah Wenger (R-36), who supports the reductions outlined in Senate Bill 6.

Wenger also attended a Harrisburg rally, joining farmers and other interested citizens in an effort to encourage legislators to agree to "bury the death tax."

"Our commonwealth has the second-highest inheritance tax rates in the nation, which drives older people to retire in other states and forces descendants to sell family farms and family-owned businesses," Wenger said. "This bill represents the first step toward phasing out the tax, as many other states have already done."

Senate Bill 6 would save inheritors nearly $100 million through:

•A 1 percent cut for direct descendants, from 6 percent to 5 percent.

•A reduction of the tax from 15 percent to 12 percent for non-lineal descendants.

•The elimination of the tax for assets transferred from a child to a parent. Under the proposal, should a parent survive a child, trust, college, or other savings funds would not be subject to the inheritance tax.

Wenger said Pennsylvania was the first state to institute an inheritance tax and is second only to Connecticut in reliance on revenue taken from survivors. Meanwhile, other states, including New York and Louisiana, are taking steps to eliminate inheritance taxes.

"The tax is particularly burdensome to farmers who want to pass the family business down through the generations," Wenger said. "Too often, those who inherit the operation are forced to sell off their assets to meet their tax bills."

Wenger noted that the high tax, by forcing individuals out of business, runs counter to progress made at the state level to promote the growth of small businesses, which are increasingly important job creators, and the success of agriculture, Pennsylvania's number one industry.

The senator added that Pennsylvania's death tax is a form of "triple taxation" because assets left to heirs have already been taxed as wages and as profit from investment.

"It's time to take the first step toward eliminating this tax in the interest of fairness to survivors, to promote a healthy economy, and to encourage the transfer of family farms from generation to generation," Wenger said.

Conference Addresses Key Issues In Nutrient Management

JAYNE SEBRIGHT
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Nutrient management will play a key role in practices and goals implemented by farmers in the 21st century.

To learn how to help farmers deal with nutrient management issues, more than 300 people attended a conference called "Managing Nutrients and Pathogens from Animal Agriculture" held in Camp Hill this week.

Designed to provide a forum for recent research, field experience, and government regulations on nutrient management, the conference drew people from all sectors of the agriculture and environmental industries.

Douglas Beegle, Professor of Agronomy at Penn State, was a member of the planning committee for the conference.

"We wanted to draw the multipliers as our audience," said Beegle. "We wanted to hit those people who help farmers address nutrient management issues so they can take the information back and implement it locally."

Beegle was one of 10 people representing universities and government agencies who served on the planning committee for the conference, which they started planning early last fall.

"The committee wanted the conference to address key issues that we saw in the different areas where we work," said Beegle. "Based on the turn out for the conference, it seems like we hit the mark pretty well."

Two of the hottest issues at the conference were phosphorus-based nutrient management plans and new policy initiatives affecting farmers.

"The conference provided the opportunity to share ideas and find out what others have done so far," said Beegle.

"The phosphorus issue has a lot of people talking, and both Maryland and Delaware have already moved on the issue. We learned more about ways farmers can deal with the new regulations that may be coming down the pike."

Although the conference primarily targeted service providers in nutrient management planning, about five percent of the conference attendees were farmers. Jamie Beaumont of Beaumont Farms, Ltd., in Ontario, Canada, was one of those.

"I came to the conference to get a greater overview of nutrient management and different technical perspective on the issues," said Beaumont. "I learned a lot about programs that the United States is using to deal with nutrient management and got to see how we could put it in perspective for what we're facing in Canada."

Beaumont farms 1,200 acres and milks 150 cows. He found the sessions on nitrogen and phosphorus leeching and land applications to control those two nutrients the most beneficial at the conference.

"I plan to take the information back to improve manure application timing, rates, and soil testing for my farm," said Beaumont. "Nutrient management is really paramount to a farmer's operation. It's half the equation with the other half being economics."

Leon Ressler, Lancaster County extension agent, also attended the conference. "It was an opportunity for me to get a lot of information about nutrient management in a short time span," said Ressler.

"The conference seemed to particularly focus on the Northeast, and it covered a lot of new research and pathogen issues," said Ressler. "A bonus for me was that it was located so close to home."

Ressler has attended these type of conferences in the past. "You get to meet with people from all over the country who have worked with the key issues in nutrient management," said Ressler. "It allows us to share ideas and network with each other."

Richard Strite of Agri-Service, LLC, in Maryland came to the conference because he provides manure equipment and does custom manure hauling for farmers in southern Pennsylvania and Maryland. He was part of the six percent of the attendees who represented industry organizations.

"I came to see what other people are doing in nutrient management and find out what regulations are coming down the road," said Strite. "Although some of the sessions were more technical, a lot of the material is information I can use to advise my customers. Farmers are always looking to suppliers for information on nutrient management."

36 experts from universities, government agencies, and private companies spoke about key issues in nutrient management. Some of the topics addressed included water quality, feed management to reduce excess nutrients, manure management practices, phosphorus-based plans, site management, and nutrient management plans.

More than 35 percent of the attendees were from universities and extension offices, while more than 30 percent were from government agencies and soil conservation districts. Six percent of the attendees were from Canada, while 28 states across the United States were represented at the conference.

The Natural Resource, Agriculture, and Engineering Service, a division of cooperative extension funded by 14 different universities, hosted the conference.

Dribbling liquid N between the rows is the most common way to sidedress. The urea-N is less vulnerable to volatilization when it's dribbled compared to spraying in a thin coat with preemerge chemicals, because droplet size is larger. However, even if the liquid N is dribbled and it gets hot and dry, volatilization will occur. It's best to time sidedressing before a rain to get fast incorporation.

If a farmer chooses to cultivate and has the proper equipment, he may inject liquid N between the rows while cultivating. This is very time-consuming and labor-intensive, but you'll be hard pressed to find prettier corn.

•Finally, don't apply nitrogen you don't need Getting a profitable return on each dollar invested in your farm business should be the rule on your farm. Investments in crop inputs, including nitrogen rates, should follow this rule.

Penn State Cooperative Extension offers the following educational references to help you understand how to manage nitrogen in your corn. All can be accessed via the internet at http://www.agronomy.psu.edu or from your local Penn State Cooperative Extension office.

•Penn State Agronomy Guide 1999-2000 Section 2 Soil Fertility Management

Solanco Young Farmers Honor Several At Banquet

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Several were honored at the recent Solanco Young Farmers Association annual awards banquet.

The banquet recognized David Downs, Swift Middle School technical education teacher. Downs attended the Ag In the Classroom Program at Penn State last summer. Solanco Young Farmers sponsored Downs' attendance and participation through this program, which allows teachers to earn continuing education credits or credit toward a graduate degree.

Ag In the Classroom is a hands-on program for teachers from K-8. The program allows teachers to integrate agriculture into the existing curriculum. Participants are provided with learning resources they can bring back with them to apply in the classroom.

Other awards were presented. The Active Member Award was given to Brian Zug. The Appreciation Award went to Brian Harnish. Outstanding Young Farmer Over 30 went to James and Debra Krantz. Outstanding Young Farmer Under 30 went to Byron Graybeal.

Dairy awards were presented. Ed and Jill Harnish, Spruce-Edge Farm, won high individual cow for production. High Individual Cow for Protein was presented to Karl and Rusty Herr of Herrvale Farm.

In the corn grain division, Dale Herr Jr. won first place with a yield of 137.5 bushels per acre for RX- 799 Bt. Second went to G. Victor Brinton with 132.87 bushels per acre for N-7639 Bt. Third went to Brian Zug for 109.79 bushels per acre for Agripro 9616.

Three-year class winner in the corn grain division was Dale Herr. Jr. for 177.21 bushel per acre yield.

In the corn silage division, first went to Dwayne Peifer for a harvest of 26.97 tons per acre using Pioneer 3173. Second went to Ed Zug with a 21.7 ton per acre yield using Mycogen TMF-114. And third was presented to Tom Herr for a yield of 19.69 tons per acre using Pioneer 3173.

Three-year average class winner for the corn silage division was Tom Herr for a yield of 23.96 tons per acre.

Farm owners should avoid the philosophy of "'I need everything until the day I die' approach," he said. Too many farm owners are never willing to give up control.

Goodley recounted the story of one farmer who was in his 80s who decided to give up the farm to his son in his 50s. "The son was too old to buy the farm," said Goodley.

In other cases, the farm is sold to pay for nursing home expenses. Though some are too uncomfortable to be thinking about death, avoiding the discussion about the transfer is not a good idea.

Farm owners can reduce the money lost to taxes by starting the transfer of the business in some increments early enough until retirement — when there is not much of the estate left to worry about. There are a variety of ways that advisers such as Goodley can offer. Penn State extension financial management agents can provide a list of estate transfer advisers. Also, Marion Bowlan at Farm Link also can provide advisers. Contact Bowlan at Pennsylvania Farm Link, Inc., 2708 A. North Colebrook Rd., Manheim, PA 17545, (717) 664- 7077. Or contact your local extension office.

To help ease the issue of farm estate transfers, U.S. Rep. Joseph R. Pitts (R-16th) this week introduced a pair of antisprawl bills. One is the Open Space Preserving Act that would eliminate the 20 percent capital gains tax a farmer must pay when he sells his property. The other is the Farmland Preservation Act, which would exempt farm children from paying federal inheritance tax (often as high as 55 percent) on the parent's farm.

Both laws would apply only to farms that are preserved.

Farms in 43 Pennsylvania counties, including Lancaster, Chester, Berks, and Lebanon, would be eligible.

Last week Sen. Noah Wenger (R-36th) announced a measure that would cut Pennsylvania's inheritance tax by $100 million, approved by the state finance committee. Wenger attended a recent Harrisburg rally, joining farmers and other citizens to encourage legislators to bury the death tax.

"Our commonwealth has the second-highest inheritance tax rates in the nation, which drives older people to retire in other states and forces descendants to sell family farms and family-owned businesses," Wenger said. Senate Bill 6 represents the first step toward phasing out the tax, he said.

Gary Smith, executive director of the Chester County Development Council, spoke about the Next Generation Farmer Loan Program. In addition, several bank and preservation representatives spoke about ways to finance the transfer at the Pennsylvania Farm Link Workshop.

More information from the workshop is scheduled in next week's issue of Lancaster Farming.

Companion Animals: A New Initiative in Animal Science

PENNSTATE
College of Agricultural Sciences

From the Department of Dairy and Animal Science

This regular column from Penn State's Department of Dairy and Animal Science features the research findings, student opportunities, and resports on other important topics generated in the Department. The back issues of the column are archived on Lancaster Farming's Internet www.lancasterfarming.com home page. Look for them.

Harold Harpster and Gabriella Varga
Department of Dairy and Animal Science
Penn State

With the spring semester well underway we are both in a "teaching mode" so let's begin this column with a quiz. What animal industry:

1) Will generate over $11 billion in feed sales in the US and over $26 billion worldwide?

2) Has an annual rate of sales growth of 4 to 7%?

3) Utilizes U.S. crops at the rate of over 3 5 million tons of corn and a million tons of soybeans annually?

4) Utilizes over 1.5 million tons of poultry, swine and beef byproducts annually and in so doing directly supports dairy, livestock, and poultry producers?

5) Feeds over 125 million head of "livestock" per day with the equivalent of 850 railroad boxcar loads of feed, each containing 40 tons?

6) Directly supports the viability of many rural farm businesses?

Yes, the answer in each case is the pet food industry and these figures do not include the untold millions spent on veterinary care, grooming, toys, equipment, sporting and competitive events, and many others.

Obviously an industry of this magnitude requires a variety of trained professionals. Until recently few traditional animal science departments have provided undergraduate course work in the companion animal area. The demand for such information is growing as more students entering animal science majors come from non-farm backgrounds and many lack any real experience with farm animals. At Penn State we see increasing numbers of new students indicate that companion animals are their number one species interest

To address this need, we recently began to offer "Animal Science 305 – Companion Animal Care and Nutrition," a 3 credit course that students may use as one of their "animal management" selections. We have five learning objectives that we expect students to accomplish:

1. Develop an appreciation for the role and importance of companion animals in our society.
2. Develop an understanding of the basic nutritional and environmental needs of companion animals.
3. Develop skills in the formulation of diets for companion animals.
4. Develop the basic management skills required for the proper care of companion animals.
5. Develop an appreciation for the economic importance of companion animals and the career opportunities they offer.

In line with the interests of many students, we emphasize dogs and cats in our lectures. However, other species are addressed including birds, reptiles, and several small mammal species. We address the nutritional and reproductive biology of each species. The more applied areas of feeding, housing and management are also discussed.

We have been very fortunate in obtaining the help and support of several off-campus folks who have been valuable in providing "real world" experiences for our students. The Lang family, owners of Dad's Products Company, INC. in Meadville, PA., have been most generous in hosting our class each year. They have provided transportation and lodging for a two-day class trip to their pet food facility. All aspects of pet food manufacture are discussed and we tour the entire plant. Most of our students are astonished to see the size and scale of the facilities for modern pet food manufacture

Metzger Animal Hospital in nearby State College has also shared their time and talents. Dr. Fred Metzger and Dr. Bob Rider lecture in class on modern animal health care followed by an informative tour of their hospital facility.

Finally, the Tom Battalina family, owners of Tornado Hollow Kennel in Cochranton, PA. give the students an overview of managing a family-owned kennel. Field-trial retrieving demonstrations using several of their outstanding Labrador Retrievers leave us in awe of the abilities of these outstanding canines!

We certainly haven't abandoned our interests in traditional animal agriculture, but it's been fun to branch out into the companion animal species. For those young people considering enrollment in Penn State's Department of Dairy and Animal Science, this course represents an opportunity to gain knowledge and experience in this growing segment of animal agriculture!

Magician Brings Joyful Response From Westmoreland 4-H Leaders

David Hiebert
Westmoreland Co.
Correspondent

LATROBE (Westmoreland Co.)- Using storytelling and magic, Jep Hostetler, Columbus, Ohio, brought smiles and laughter to participants at the recent Westmoreland County 4-H kick-off dinner.The dinner, held at the Blue Angel Restaurant was organized to honor the 274 adult volunteers that lead more than 3000 youth in county 4-H programs last year.

Hostetler, a retired college professor, introduced six principles of life he calls "the Joy Factor" as essential for overcoming life's obstacles. "Joyful people," he said, "understand that life is a gift; that life is scared;" and that we have to help each other."

To show how ordinary things can be funny, he demonstrated how to turn a terrycloth towel into a cow. And that cow into a chicken!

Drawing on family stories from his youth on an Ohio farm, Hostetler recognized that, at times, life can be difficult. Hostetler is an associate professor emeritus, Dept. of Preventive Medicine, Ohio State University College of Medicine. He spent nearly thirty years teaching medical students in the fields of anatomy, substance abuse medicine, and medical humanities.

He has authored several books including "Ten things parents should know about drug and alcohol abuse."

Dr. Jep, as his students called him, is a internationally known speaker on humor and health and a world-class magician. In addition, Hostetler's work in alcohol and drug abuse dovetails nicely with a current emphasis on drug abuse prevention in the Westmoreland 4-H program.

Some business reports given during the evening

John Vincze, chair of the Westmoreland County 4-H board of directors highlighted the following county emphases in 1999.

The food and nutrition program has expanded to eight clubs. Completion of the $180,000 William C. Kelly building at the Westmoreland County fairgrounds. It is now available for year-round programming.

Jep (Dr. Jep) Hostetler

The 4-H scholarship program had it's biggest year, providing a total of $23,500 in educational support in its 5 years of existence.

Joann Logan, youth extension agent, noted that people in Westmoreland County still don't know about the extensive 4-H program. As part of an effort to raise awareness, the extension service has produced a brochure highlighting the program. In addition to describing the program for youth, the brochure says about adults:

"We care about volunteers. Before becoming a screened leader, adult volunteers receive an in-depth training by the Westmoreland County 4-H staff. Afterwards many opportunities are offered to keep leaders up-to-date on trends including workshops on youth development, club programming ideas, and leadership skillss. The Westmoreland County 4- program is proud of its leaders' commitment to youth, and is committed to supporting and recognizing the volunteers in their efforts!"

The brochure also notes that a major purpose for 4-H is to teach responsibility and promote character development. Joann also stated that Westmoreland has the second highest rate in the US for students who return to their home county after education

In other business, three people were elected to the 4-H board including Westmoreland County Commissioner Thomas Balya Commissioner Balya has been a strong supporter of the 4-H youth development program, going so far as to publicly milk goats and judge demonstrations . He was instrumental in obtaining funding for the new 4-H urban youth program.

Glenn Ganassi, Mosshaven Way, Ligonier, is a leader of the Chestnut Ridge 4-H Community Club for 8 years. He serves as shooting sports, computer, and rabbit leader for the club He served previously on the 4-H board of directors and is co-chair of the cooperative extension executive committee.

Betty Han, Latrobe, is the third elected director. Betty has been a 4-H leader for 26 years with the 4-H Travel-All Exchange Program and is organizational leader of the Blue Ribbon Ag 4-H Club. Betty is superintendent of the barnyard zoo at the Westmoreland Fair Betty and her husband Merle run a small farm operation and she is the mother of three children and grandmother of five.

Volunteers honored

Adult volunteer leaders at significant milestones were recognized for years of service, including 35 who are concluding their 1st year and Nancy Schaller, Bolivar, a leader who has served for 35 years Westmoreland County Commissioner Scott Conners got sympathetic groans from the crowd when he mentioned "9 long, long days at the fair,"

And he proved his political sensitivity when he said, "I wish I had grown up on a farm and had been mentored by fine people like you."

Conners and Krystal McCracken, Mt Pleasant, a 4-H Travel-All Club member presented certificates to each person at the significant anniversaries as a volunteer

Dauphin Soil Conservation Banquet Emphasizes Preservation

JAYNE SEBRIGHT
Lancaster Farming Staff

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.) — Honoring farmers, organizations, and students for their dedication to conservation, the Dauphin County Conservation District held its 2000 annual awards banquet at the Agriculture and Natural Resource Center last week.

During the meeting, three awards were presented, along with presentations to the high school speech contest winners. Award presentations focused on the efforts of award winners to conserving Dauphin County resources.

The Leffler Family was recognized as the 1999 Outstanding Conservation Farm Family. Mother Alfreida and sons Neal and Dennis farm 206 acres in Lykens Township, northern Dauphin County. The District commended them for their conservation ethic on their farm, implementing many conservation practices to conserve Dauphin County's water resources.

The Lefflers own 71 acres and rent 132 acres of land, all of which is included in their conservation plan. They also milk 80 head of dairy cattle. The Lefflers have been cooperating with the District for 10 years. Neal Leffler accepted the award for the family.

Joseph Ibberson was awarded the 1999 Forest Steward Conservationist Award. According to award presenter Jay Book, District board member, it takes 17 trees to clean up after every car that is driven today. "This gentleman helps those of us who don't own our 17 trees," Book said.

Ibberson owns 1,800 acres of timberland, which has been certified as a Tree Farm for 31 years. He has planted 12,000 seedlings, improved 1,095 acres with timber stands, built 15 miles of access roads, and constructed nine ponds on his property. Ibberson's natural sanctuary is also used as part of many educational programs.

In 1999, Ibberson donated about 200 acres of forestland and adjacent fields to the Bureau of State Parks. Known as the Ibberson Conservation Area, the park is used for informal recreation and forestry education. He recently endowed the Joseph E. Ibberson Chair of Forest Management at Penn State University. He was also honored as the 1998 Pennsylvania Tree Farmer of The Year.

The 1999 Outstanding Conservation Organization award went to the Wiconisco Creek Restoration Association, which includes 15 volunteer members. The association was honored for their commitment to the promotion of conservation and improvement of the Wiconisco Creek Watershed.

Some of the projects the association has been involved in include repairing and restoring a diversion well near Muir to correct the pH of the water flowing into the creek, sanddosing projects in the watershed's stream, stream debris cleanup in northern Dauphin County, and planting more than 6,000 trees in the Rodichok riparian buffer area near Sheridan.

The ultimate goal of the Wiconisco Creek Restoration Association is to make the Wiconisco Creek fishable, canoeable, and swimmable from its headwaters to the Susquehanna River.

Winners of a high school speech contest were also honored during the banquet. The speech focused on the topic, "Wetland Preservation." Award winners included Patricia Minchoff from Upper Dauphin High School who received first place, Rachel Dutcher from Milton Hershey High School who received second, and Kenya Lewis from Milton Hershey High School who placed third. The girls received framed certificates and cash awards.

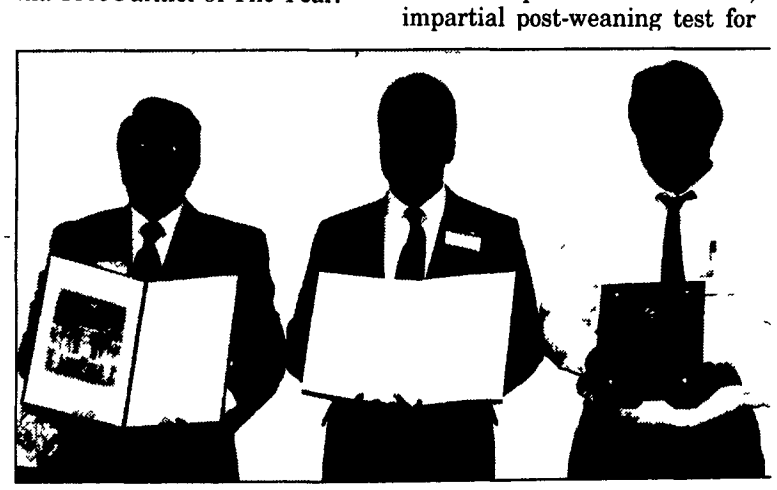
Minchoff gave her award-winning speech during the banquet, which highlighted ways to conserve wetlands. According to Minchoff, wetlands are disappearing at a devastating rate, up to 100,000 acres per year throughout the United States.

Educating people about the role of wetlands in the food cycle and in preservation of our environment was one suggestion that Minchoff gave for conserving wetlands.

President of the Dauphin County Conservation District Board of Directors David Coble led the meeting and recognized board members and staff who attended the meeting. The guest speaker was Ken Hunter, an award-winning wildlife artist, who presented a program on "Research of a Wildlife Artist."

The Dauphin County Conservation District was established in 1952 with primary emphasis on soil conservation with the farm community. To keep up with changing landscapes in Dauphin County, the District now focuses 60 percent of its work on urban or nonagricultural programs.

The Soil Conservation District honored the top three high school speech contest winners, including from left Rachel Dutcher, second place winner; Patricia Minchoff, first place winner; and Kenya Lewis, third place winner.



The 1999 Outstanding Conservation Organization award was presented to Wiconisco Creek Restoration Association. Accepting the award for the association was from left Bill Nare, treasurer; Walt Finch, president; and Dave Fennell, secretary.

Annual Ohio Bull Test Sale April 15

BELLE VALLEY, Ohio – Belle Valley will echo with the sounds of determined buyers and bellowing cattle at the Ohio Bull Test Sale, April 15, beginning at 1 p.m.

This year's 31st annual performance tested bull sale is a cooperative effort of the Ohio Cattleman's Association, Ohio State University Extension and the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center. The sale will feature several breeds including Angus, Charolais, Chimaine, Gelbvieh, Polled Hereford, and Simmental.

"The Ohio Bull Test is a 112-day performance test that primarily examines a bull's growth potential by measuring traits such as average daily gain (ADG) and weight per day of age (WPD)," said Eric Dorr, OSU Extension associate and director of beef improvement programs for the Ohio Cattlemen's Association.

The test serves as a way for seedstock producers to have their animals compared against those of other breeders, while providing them a proven marketing outlet at the end of the test, Dorr said.

"The test is an educational tool that demonstrates the variation in growth patterns of different types, breeds and kinds of cattle. It provides a standard, impartial post-weaning test for rate of gain, soundness and condition. It's also an opportunity for breeders to collect progeny group information on herd sires," Dorr said.

The bull test begins in early November with the delivery of young, weaned, registered bulls to the Eastern Ohio Resource Development Center in Belle Valley, Noble County. Every 28 days, the bulls are weighed and their progress documented. On day 84, the bulls are weighed, ultrasounded for ribeye area and fat thickness and intramuscular fat (marbling), measured for hip height and frame score, and measured for scrotal circumference. The test ends March 15, and at that time, the bull test committee determines which bulls will qualify for sale.

Dorr said in order for a bull to qualify, he must have a Performance Index ratio of 90 or higher within his own breed test group.

"The ratio is established using a combined index of ADG and WPD between all the bulls in the same breed group. If a breed group has fewer than six head entered in the test, they are grouped with other breeds with fewer than six head – forming one mixed group."

A ratio of 100 equals the average ADG and WPD within each group. A bull with a ratio of 110 grew 10 percent faster than the average of the test group. A bull whose ratio equals 90 grew 10 percent slower than the average of that test group. The other minimum qualifications for sale bulls include a minimum scrotal circumference of 30 centimeters and a minimum frame score of 4.5. In addition to meeting these sale requirements, bulls are also evaluated on breeding soundness, which includes a semen check and reproductive examination, and must be classified a "Satisfactory Potential Breeders" to be included in the sale.

There is a minimum bid of $1,000 on every bull. Producers will be able to purchase bulls from four remote sale locations again this year. Bulls purchased from a remote location will be delivered free of charge to that remote sale location. Each remote site will have a video available. The video will feature bulls that will be sold on April 15. Anyone interested in purchasing bulls from a remote site should contact the following individuals for details about sale day procedures.

•Visitors are welcome to stop at EORDC's Bull Test Station to review and observe the bulls. A field day will be held at the branch on April 14. The event, sponsored by the American Simmental Association, Ohio Simmental Association, and the Ohio Cattleman's Association, will provide an excellent opportunity to see the bulls. The event begins at 4 p.m. and features speakers from ASA and OSU Extension. A free hamburger fry is included in the activities. Contact Wayne Shriver, EORDC manager, (740) 732-4275 for more information.

MTBE A Boon

WASHINGTON, D.C. – The National Farmers Union (NFU) applauds the announcement by Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Carol Browner and USDA Secretary Dan Glickman that phases out the use of methyl tertiary butyl ether (MTBE).

More importantly for farmers, their announcement encourages additional use of renewable fuels that use farmer-produced commodities such as corn, a component in the production of ethanol.

The Environmental Protections Agency (EPA) proposal calls for an eventual ban of the gasoline additive MTBE. The agency strongly backs the use of oxygenated fuels, but for some time has questioned whether it is safe to use MTEB as an oxygenate in gasoline. Because to its propensity to seep out of storage tanks and contaminate groundwater, the agency has recommended Congress eliminate it as one of the additives that cut exhaust emissions and raise octane.

"This announcement is welcome news for family farmers," said NFU President Leland Swenson. "Establishing a renewable fuels standard provides a solid foundation on which the ethanol industry will grow," he said.

Last year, the NFU endorsed a national renewable fuels standard as well as legislation by Sen. Tom Daschle, D-S.D., that encourages the use of ethanol as the most practical additive for reducing ozone-forming carbon monoxide in reformulated gasoline.

"With the issues of sustainable energy and environmental integrity regaining prominence in the national consciousness, farmers are uniquely positioned to respond to this challenge of stewardship and production," said Swenson. "We are pleased with the leadership EPA has taken in proposing this change. We hope that Congress will work swiftly to enact this vital proposal."

Key Steps To Develop A Web Site

In the past few years, the Internet has become an important component of the business community. There is an estimated 165 million people on the Web, with the Web doubling in size every 50 days. The Federal Government reported e-commerce sales during the fourth quarter of 1999 at $5.3 billion. With projections of over $40 billion by the end of this year, the Internet may be an opportunity for your business to experience growth.

According to a recent USDA report, over 29% of farms are reporting Internet access. This trend is growing quickly, when looking at 1997's statistics of only 13% of farmers on the Internet. If your farm or business has considered starting a web site to tap into this growing market, now might be the time. As much of the agriculture economy is struggling to remain profitable, a web site may help you reach new markets you may have never considered.

The Electronic Commerce Resource Center (ECRC) serves as a catalyst for small and medium sized businesses to adopt electronic commerce. The first step they recommend when considering a web site is to define the purpose. Researching your competitor's web sites is an excellent way to help formulate your own web site ideas. You may want to generate leads, provide information, provide customer support, or transact business. Your purpose along with the goals you want to achieve will help define the structure of your web site.

A second step is to determine your target audience. Analyze their demographics, geographic location, technical skills, etc. to determine a usage profile. What does your target market want? Is it to purchase quality products and services, to save money, to save time, to obtain useful information? Through answering these questions you can continue to step three: develop a strategy for your web site. Your strategy may be to build brand identity, demonstrate products or services, educate your audience, facilitate direct responses or to just sell more product.

After your strategy has been developed, step four is to determine your budget. Your annual expenses in designing and maintaining a web site may range from a few thousand to $100,000 or more, depending on what level of quality and service it requires. You must weigh these expenses against the potential revenue you may gain in new sales, advertising, timesaving, and customer satisfaction.

Step five is then determining the content of your web site based on your budget. Some considerations to offer on your web site are your company information, product and service information, address, contact methods, interactivity, an online catalog, a privacy policy, purchase methods, search methods, security information and a site map. Once you have reached the point where you feel confident in what your business would like to offer on a web site, you can begin contacting web hosts and gain some proposals of costs. The web site www.thelist.com, is an excellent ISP pricing tool in which you enter your area code and gain a listing of comparable Internet Service Provider's in your area.

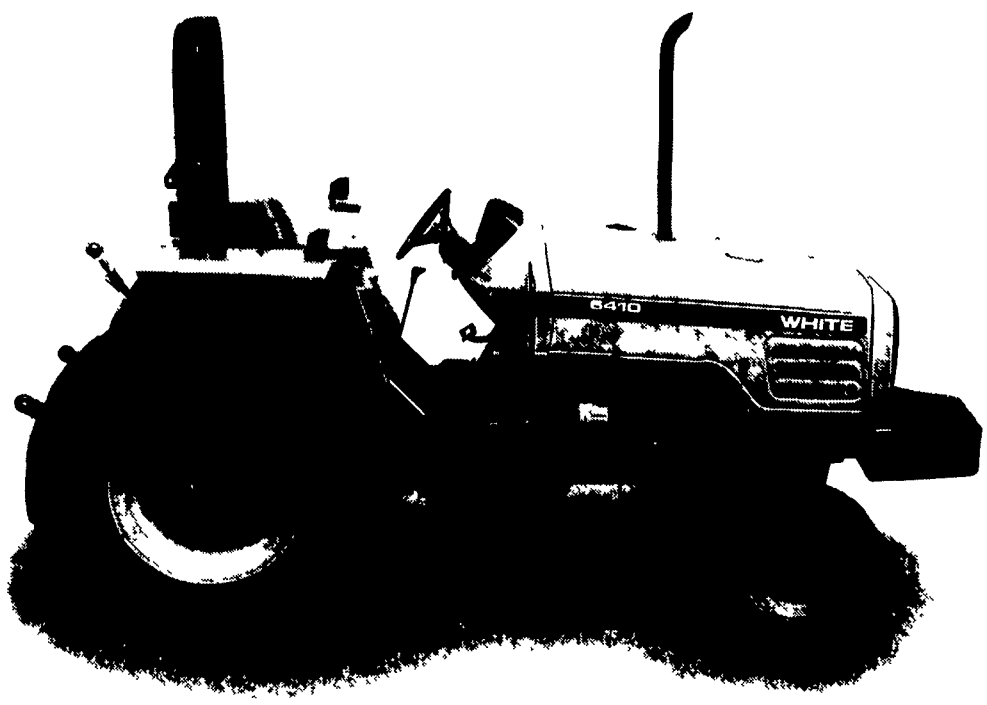
Upon deciding on your ISP, you may begin to construct your web site. Your ISP may be able to assist you in this process, or you may work with an independent web designer. It is important that you design a web site which truly meets your objectives and is customer friendly. There are numerous decisions to make such as selecting your domain name, structure, graphics, layout and speed of your web site in which your ISP and web designer will help you decide. Through working closely with a web designer they should be able to tailor a web site that best fits your needs. In order to keep your web site fresh and up to date, maintenance is a key consideration.

Depending on the objective of your web site it may require constant revision to be effective. Schedule regular updates to content and incorporate feedback generated by customer suggestions. The more current you can keep your web site, the happier your customers will be and more likely to use it.

Your business may have the potential to grow in this new e-commerce industry. You must determine the exact fit a web site could have for your business and explore the venture as if it was any normal business decision. Proper planning is the key step in running a successful web site.

For more information on web sites, you may contact the West Chester Electronic Commerce Resource Center at 888-745-3748, your local Chamber of Commerce & Industry. Feel free to send your comments or questions by email to Brent Landis at The Lancaster Chamber at blandis@lcci.com, or call him at 717-397-3531, ext. 62.

"I need a tractor that works hard and drives easy."



All I Need Is A WHITE.

Convenience. The 6410 is a pleasure to drive, thanks to a high-visibility, low-profile hood, easy-to-read gauges on the convenient front panel and easy-to-reach controls in the right-hand console. Which means your 6410 can work hard, while you take it easy.

Engine. Under the low-profile hood of the 70 PTO hp 6410, the turbocharged, Cummins B3.9 engine burns clean and efficiently. And with up to 40% fewer parts than others in its class, it knows how to keep working for you, day after day.

Transmission. The 6410's standard 12 x 4 Partial Synchro transmission delivers unparalleled operating efficiency. Or choose the optional 12 x 12 Syncro/Shuttle for even greater versatility. Either way, a wet multi-disc clutch adds durability.

Comfort. Standard spring-suspension, 4-way adjustable seating makes you at home in either the cab or fold-down ROPS model. An optional air-ride, swivel seat in the cab, along with standard air and heat, pamper you while you work.

Information On The West Nile Virus Threat And Its Aftermath

Anthony E. Castro, DVM,PhD
Virologist (PADLS)

The occurrence of West Nile virus (WNV) in birds, horses, and humans in the northeastern United States in 1999 was the first encounter of this arbovirus in the USA. Arboviruses are those viruses that are transmitted by an insect vector from one species to another. The WNV is a typical arbovirus (flavivirus) which is transmitted by the bite of a mosquito vector from an animal which is viremic (ie. virus circulating in the blood stream) to a susceptible species.

The strain of WNV presently in the USA is genetically related to the WNV strains found in the Middle East. It has been seen to be extremely lethal to crows which when infected, die in high numbers, thus crows provide a sentinel for the presence of the WNV in a vicinity. The virus also infects horses when bitten by mosquitoes carrying the virus. In horses, the illness is usually expressed as neurologic signs (encephalitis) or ambulatory deficits.

Transmission from animal-to-animal, birds-to-horses or animal to human has not been known to occur. In horses, an "influenza-like" syndrome occurs with weakness and circling. Incoordination also follows, which may lead to eventual death. Thus, all horses and also humans are considered "terminal hosts." Nevertheless, horses usually have a low viremia which allows them to produce antibodies to the WNV. Such immune animals are not sources of virus and should not be euthanatized. In areas where the disease has been identified susceptible horses should by kept indoors to avoid mosquito contact.

The WNV can be isolated in approved state and federal laboratories. Usually, the virus can be obtained from cerebrospinal fluids or identified in tissues by molecular procedures (ie., reverse transcriptase polymerase chain reaction). Serum is used to detect specific antibodies (IgM and IgG) to WNV. Pools of trapped mosquitoes can be used to detect WNV by antigen capture ELISAs.

A passive surveillance program can be instituted by animal owners by informing veterinary personnel of neurologic illness in horses, excessive death of birds, specifically crows, and increases in the mosquito populations. In humans, public health departments should be informed of flu-like illnesses, skin rash, with neurologic symptoms and flaccid paralysis when they are seen as these can lead to death. Suspected human cases can be tested for their exposure to WNV by serology (serum antibodies). However, most human infections by WNV are usually clinically inapparent.

Vertical transmission of WNV occurs in mosquitoes (ie, Culex and Aedes genus), but has not yet been seen in the strain isolated in the northeastern US. The viral RNA has been shown to exist in mosquitoes that have overwintered in New York City. Nonetheless, persistence of infectious WNV has not yet been proven to occur in the virus isolated in the USA. Vector control is critical by mosquito abatement programs and destruction of breeding areas for mosquito larvae.

Precautions to follow include the use of gloves and face protection when handling dead birds or horses. At present, the WNV has not been detected or has not occurred clinically in animals located in Pennsylvania. A surveillance program has been instituted by the Department of Agriculture to insure the rapid detection of WNV should it occur in the Commonwealth.

A little money buys a lot of Action.

The Pennsylvania Feeder Calf Roundup

Dr. John Comerford
Penn State University
Extension Beef Specialist

Pennsylvania feeder calf producers are at a disadvantage in the marketplace because of small herd sizes and variability of management and genetics. The roundup program began in 1993 as a means to make production, health programs, and marketing more consistent among small herds.

Calves are consigned to the program in the summer. Vaccinations for the respiratory complex, including pasturella, begin in late August on the farm. Booster shots are given 2 weeks later with the addition of deworming, ear tags, and optional implants. After another two weeks, the calves are transported to a weaning center, where they are weighed, comingled, graded by PDA, sorted into truckload lots for sale, and started on limited grain rations. Calves that are overweight, under weight, improperly castrated, not graded M1 or L1, or have health problems are rejected.

Calves are offered for sale on a teleauction in late September or early October from a sale originating at Buckhannon, WV. Delivery from the weaning center usually occurs 10-14 days after the sale, for a total weaning period of 20-22 days. Consignors are paid based on the weight of the calves at delivery. Costs for consignors include the health program, feed, yardage at the weaning center, and sale commissions.

Pennsylvania Roundup calves have developed an outstanding reputation for health and feedlot performance. The objective of "feed them and forget them" cattle has been attained. Morbidity after the sale has averaged less than 1%, and only one calf has been lost from traceable records. These results are attributed to the waiting period after the booster shots are given before transportation and weaning occur.

Calves have sold at the top price or near the top of all 1200 cattle sold on the sale annually. Repeat buyers occur regularly. A survey among producers indicates they feel the additional price they receive for the cattle is the most important feature of the program, which often averages $20/cwt above local markets.

Costs for the program have varied from $35.00 to $47.00 per calf, and usually requires a premium price of $4.00/cwt. Producers also indicate the program has helped them make production and breeding decisions that have improved the value and pride they have in their cattle. Future improvements include the purchase of half-sib sires among consigning herds to increase the genetic consistency, source verification validation, and enterprise financial analysis.

Equine Alert To Avoid Disaster

Jeffrey M. Edelson V.M.D.

Horses should eat only what horses normally eat. Dried hay or grass pasture, clean oats, or commercial horse feed and fresh water. Too often our good intentions or lack of knowledge results in disaster.

Horses have very sensitive intestinal systems and cannot tolerate change. Inadvertent change comes from the introduction of strange materials or when someone feeds the wrong food or too much of anything. It is also worse when the horse gets loose and eats too much.

The following items have resulted in the foolish loss of no less than 30 horses in our practice in 1999. Most of these examples happen with regularity and all too often result in severe sickness and/or death from colic, which shows up as a severe bellyache with pawing the ground as a sign of pain to rolling violently; to foundering which is a circulatory problem resulting in severe changes to the feet.

The "Ag Bag"-the horses that get loose and get into silage stored in the Ag Bags or other storage systems and expose horses to feed stuff they are not used to. Silage is a form of fermenting or mildly decaying plant material that is very high in Botulism spores. Horses affected with Botulism are almost assured of the slow death unless they have been vaccinated against Botulism. Muscles do not work because the botulism toxin blocks the nerve pathway. The horse dies from not being able to swallow and breathe.

The pasture is a dumping ground for junk. Not only the metal and glass kind that's obviously a danger, but the plant kind also. Each year the good intentioned neighbor or family member puts over the fence grass clippings, vines, ewe branch clippings, watermelon rines, egg shells, and anything else imaginable. Horses are curious and they tend to nibble.

Molds are a disaster when they are in the food supply. Horses usually cannot tolerate the molds and that can cause disaster ending in colic or founder. Any hay or grain that is moldy should be discarded. A less common thought of mold comes from grass clippings or corn husks and cobs. These materials start to ferment within an hour after being cut from the yard and piled in the hot sun. Corn on the cob for dinner starts with corn husks.

Every good intentioned neighbor or household member wants to "feed the horses" so a pile of rapidly fermenting material ends up in the pasture. Tree trimmings, piles of leaves or evergreen branches can be a disaster. Japanese Ywe is a common plant and trimmed regularly. A very large horse will usually die with the trimmings still in their mouth-the toxin is that fast in its action.

Earlier this month we lost three mares in their last trimester pregnancies due to "vines" from the garden that were dumped into the pasture. Death was extremely violent and the loss to the farmer was very costly since they were prime breeding stock.

Alert all members on the farm, kids and especially "good intentioned neighbors" NOT to put anything into the pasture, not even the grass clippings and corn husks/cobs. They can make the horses very sick and even kill them.

Northeast Order

BOSTON, Mass. — Erik Rasmussen, Market Administrator for the Northeast Marketing Area, has announced that the statistical uniform price for February 2000 is $12.21 per hundredweight or $1.05 per gallon for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk County, Mass.

The statistical uniform price is the benchmark minimum producer blend price paid to dairy farmers, prior to allowable deductions, for milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat, 2.99 percent protein, and 5.69 percent other solids. The price received by individual dairy farmers will vary as the component composition of a farm's milk differs from the established benchmarks.

Rasmussen also stated that the producer price differential (PPD) for February is $2.67 per hundredweight for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk, Mass. The February PPD is $2.57 in New York, NY, and $2.46 in Philadelphia.

The Class prices for milk pooled in February are as follows: Class I - $13.96 (Suffolk Co., MA), Class II - $11.51, Class III - $9.54, and Class IV - $10.80. Had the Northeast Order been in effect in 1999, comparable class prices for February 1999 would have been: Class I - $20.15, Class II - $13.72, Class III - $11.335, and Class IV - $12.71. The component values for February are protein - $1.9849 per pound, butterfat - $0.9588 per pound, other solids - $0.0432 per pound, and nonfat solids - $0.8565 per pound.

Milk receipts from producers totaled 2.034 billion pounds. Class I utilization, milk processed as beverage milk, was 41.3 percent of producer milk receipts.

Sets Swine Meeting

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) – White Oak Mills has announced that independent pork producers are invited to a free White Oak Mills 2000 Swine Meeting, "Competing in the 21st Century."

The seminar will be Wednesday, April 12, from 9 a.m. to approximately 2:15 p.m. at Wizard Catering's Acorn Farms Conference Center, Mount Joy.

Seminar topics will include:

- "Competing in the 21st Century" at 9:30 a.m.
- "Sow Herd Health Challenges" at 10 a.m.
- "Profitably Managing Herd Health" or PQA Certification at 11 a.m.
- "SEW and Finishing Advancements" at 12:45 p.m.
- "Using Pig Postmortems as a Tool for Understanding Herd Health" at 1:30 p.m.

White Oak Mills' key speakers will be Dale Dues and Dr. Kevin Cera, both from Akey Inc., Ohio, and Dr. Dale Hendrickson, Stoney Creek Veterinary Services, Indiana.

Chet Hughes, Lancaster County extension, will lead the 11 a.m. PQA certification for producers who are interested.

Registration begins at 9 a.m. A pork barbecue lunch will be served at noon.

To reserve a seat at this educational event, call White Oak Mills' at (800) 468-5524 by noon Friday, April 7.

HARVESTORE® STRUCTURE MANAGEMENT TOOL

Nelson Habecker of Lancaster, farming with the Harvestore System since 1971, ships over 2,000,000 lbs. of milk and processes all of his high moisture grains through his 20 x 30 Harvestore structure. He does it by refilling the structure with high moisture barley while it still has some high moisture corn in it. The Power Sweep Auger unloader provides him with some mixing action. Fed in a total mixed ration, it makes an excellent feed.

Maryland Holstein Ladies Enjoy Easter Desserts

Ruth Snow, Sharon Hollingsworth, Nona Schwartzbeck, and Mary Ellen Leaverton all visited the teddy bear maker's house during the Maryland Holstein Convention craft shop tour.

Sandra Crissinger, dessert and diatetic specialist at Penn Alps Restaurant, made this diatetic cake to show guests how easy it is to get taste without sugar.

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

GRANTSVILLE (Md.) — 24 ladies who attended the Maryland Holstein Convention ladies program learned how to create an "Easter Parade" during food demonstrations presented on last Friday.

Held in the Great Hall over Penn Alps Restaurant, the demonstration was presented by Jane McCracken, Penn Alps head kitchen supervisor, and Sandra "Sam" Crissinger, dessert specialist. They prepared boy and girl Easter bunnies, an Easter basket cake, and strawberry desserts.

McCracken chose Easter as the theme and featured fresh strawberries in her creations. She created the first Easter bunny by cutting a round cake layer through the center and placing the haves on end, side by side, with filling holding them together.

She used buttercream liquid filling and icing mixture to cover the entire surface. Then Crissinger coated the cake with tinted coconut. The tinted coconut was made by tossing coconut with food coloring in a plastic bag.

Using blue coconut for the first "boy" bunny, she added jelly bean eyes and bent pipe cleaners for the ears. The "girl" bunny was made using yellow-tinted coconut.

McCracken also made filled croissants as one of her desserts. Over the bottom half, she put on white filling with a icing funnel. Then she added glazed strawberries prepared earlier with corn syrup and dextrose. The strawberries were then topped with more filling. McCracken sprinkled powdered sugar on to complete the picture.

"This is nice and easy to do if company comes," said McCracken.

Strawberry pies were next. McCracken used four pastry shells to make enough for every attendee to try some of the dessert later.

While McCracken completed the strawberry pie demonstration, Crissinger shared her extensive knowledge of diabetic and dietetic desserts, which have recently been added to the Penn Alps menu.

"Diabetic and dietetic are two different things," she said. "Diabetic means no sugar, and dietetic means low amounts of sugar."

"A person has to know how much sugar they can have," said Crissinger, who has several grandchildren with diabetes.

"If you tell someone it's sugar-free, they think it won't taste good," she said. "Try blending whipped topping and, if a cheesecake, more cream cheese to add flavor."

A favorite made with sugar-free vanilla pudding mix and whipped topping is banana cream pie. The combination is poured over bananas already sliced at the bottom of the pastry shell.

Crissinger recommended using applesauce in baking so long as you know what kind of apples the sauce came from. "Many people who are trying to avoid sugar do not realize how high the sugar content is, especially in red and yellow delicious apples," she said. "Eat a tart apple instead."

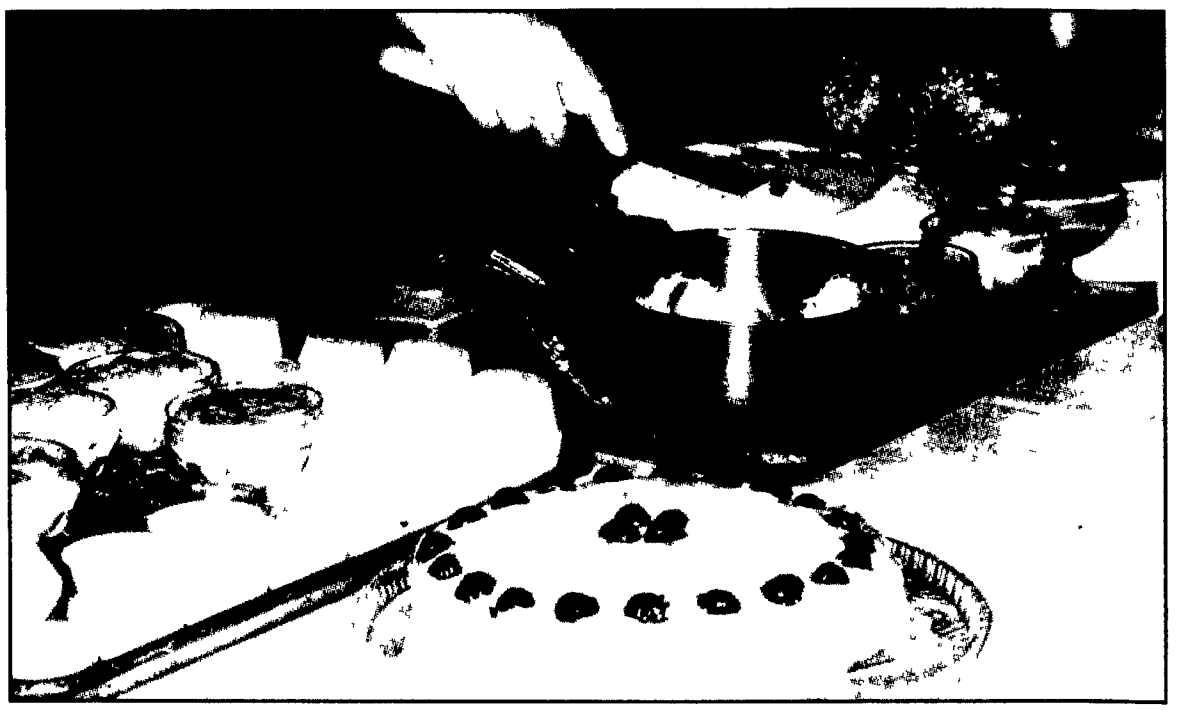
Crissinger also suggested trying Aspartain. "It is a natural sugar derived from fruit," she said, adding that no aftertaste remains. Many supermarkets and health food stores carry Aspartain.

Following the demonstration, everyone enjoyed a luncheon in the Great hall. Favors included a bar of shampoo and conditioner wrapped in spring-colored tissue.

After lunch, everyone spent the remaining afternoon hours visiting local shops, such as Four Seasons Stitchery, Yoders Country Market, and Spruce Forest Artisan Village on the Penn Alps campus.

The ladies program for the Maryland Holstein Convention was coordinated by Fannie Bender, Alice Bender, Glenda Maust, and Julia Bender.

Jane McCracken, head kitchen supervisor at Penn Alps Restaurant, made split croissants with filling and glazed strawberries during the food demonstration.



These tempting desserts were part of the food demonstration in the Great Hall of Penn Alps Restaurant and Craft Shop during the Maryland Holstein Convention's Ladies Program.

Beginning Grazier's School Focuses On Grass Selection, Herd Health

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

SYLVAN (Franklin Co) — What's good for tall fescue can simply make cows sick, according to a leading grazier

Burning down and removing the grasses from the rotationally grazed farm operated by the Glenn Moyer family has been "one of the hardest decisions I've made since I've worked with grazing systems in 13 years," he said

Moyer, host for the Beginning Dairy Graziers School in mid-October at the farm owned by American Farmland Trust (AFT) at the foot of the Tuscarora Mountain near Sylvan, looked over the brown grasses destroyed by Roundup

Speaking to a group of two dozen producers learning how to graze, Moyer shook his head, realizing that it was awkward to have to get rid of the fescues — hardy grasses that can withstand drought and recover quickly — but he believes they could be responsible for health problems at his dairy

Fescue endophyte toxicity, and possible nitrate problems resulting from quick regrowth from rains following a drought emergency, could be responsible for a drop in milk production, respiratory problems, lameness, "fescue foot," and a "lots of symptoms of things," said Moyer

Fescue can be tolerant of dry weather At the more than 300-acre AFT farm, the fescues were the first to green up well when rains fell after the drought The persistent plant has genetics that makes it hardy and vigorous, readily surviving cold winters and prolonged drought

Fescues, dating back 30 years, can experience a green flush after a drought But that flush can be accompanied by nitrate toxicity — leading to lots of problems in cows

"What I found out about fescue is that almost everyone has a theory," said Moyer But ridding the farm of fescue — which they are doing gradually — is contrary to "the way I was trained and how I was taught to graze," he said. Replacing it is "uncharted territory"

In October, Bryan T Petrucci, director of farms division for AFT, introduced the graziers who at

The AFT farm uses a concrete feed pad measuring about 100 feet long by 22 feet wide, with an additional area measuring 65 feet by 12 feet, comprising a feed area for 168 cows with two feet of room per cow, Moyer noted. The pad can accommodate about 130 cows. Moyer hosted the Beginning Dairy Graziers School in mid-October at the farm. Photo by Andy Andrews

Cattle, Equipment Can Move Efficiently, Safely With Good Laneway Design

INDIANA (Indiana Co) — If a laneway is designed correctly, herdstock managers can move livestock and equipment quickly, safely, and efficiently, noted several experts who spoke here last year

Late in the spring, about 70 people, including herd managers graziers, and agri-industry experts, spoke at a grazing field dale and tour of Dale Bracken's stocker cattle farm near Indiana

The field day, sponsored by Project Grass, the Indiana County Conservation District, and the Mabis Mekenna Foundation focused on laneway design and maintenance. J B Harold, Project Grass coordinator, Allan Wood, Natural Resource Conservation Service (NRCS) state engineer and Bill Stout, Pasture Lab, University Park spoke about laneway construction

Just in time for this year's spring planting season, we've come into some exciting, but rarely-publicized gardening tips.

It's unlikely you'll ever find any of this advice in any gardening publication we've ever seen, nor will any seed company print them in their catalogs.

Though little-known, these tips come guaranteed to assure you a most memorable gardening season.

Instead of planting your run-of-the-mill seed potato sets, first consider the primary end use of spuds in your household. If by chance that happens to be French fries, trim those seed sets to a uniform shape before putting them in the ground. The most desirable shape cut for the popular fries is about 1/2-inch by 3 to 4-inches, yielding you a harvest of dainty, pre-shaped spud fingers ready to pop into a kettle of hot cooking oil.

The look on your gardening-expert neighbor's face when you dig up a few of these specialities will more than compensate for the extra peeling time they will take before French-frying them.

Nutritionists have long told us that salads are good for us. And few things are easier to grow than lettuce. Providing you can keep the slugs away from nibbling them if it happens to be a damp spring. And the bunnies. And the groundhogs.

To protect those baby lettuce seedlings from the early chilly weather and those maurauding pests, we suggest you wrap each plant carefully in a little suit and jacket as you plant it in the ground. While this may initially be tedious, think what a time-saver it will be later on to have all your salad already dressed.

Most of us, and especially kids, seem to get a kick out of raising those adorable little mini-tomatoes. And we should do whatever we can to encourage kids to eat their veggies. But while they're cute, those little tomatoes take up lots of space for the actual yield they give, compared to the larger versions.

Our solution? Plant an indeterminate (the kind that grow longer and longer stalks) regular-sized tomato next to a cherry tree. Train the vines up the through the fruit tree's branches for cherry tomatoes that are really worthwhile for slicing in a sandwich.

Not everyone has the space to grow corn, since you really need to plant several rows of it to properly cross-pollinate and give you any decent sort of yield. But is you have the space and want to try some different types of corn, we suggest a couple of alternate methods.

Mash each corn seed before planting for a harvest of pre-creamed corn. A bit messy to husk, but tasty.

Or toss your seeds before planting with a mixture of flour and yeast, for a handy yield of cornbread.

Or if you like succotash, that tasty blend of corn and lima beans, plant one of each seed side-by-side for a cross-pollinated ready-mix you can enjoy fresh or freeze for winter dining.

Cucumbers are very popular and easy to grow around here. And, lots of folks grow extra to make their own pickles. But making pickles is a lot of work. May we suggest this shortcut: just water the vines regularly with a room-temperature blend of one part sugar to one part vinegar (sweeter or more sour, depending on your taste). Viola! Pickles, direct from the vine without the mess.

Add dill or assorted pickling spices to your watering liquid for variety in your finished product.

If you prefer to pick a peck of pickled peppers, pour this perky and piquant plant picker-upper on your pepper patch.

And, finally, when you are finished planting your garden for these unique yields, take whatever veggie seeds you might have left over, dump them together in a bag and plant a row of the leftover combination. Your resulting harvest, when combined with some tasty meat and broth, should make a tasty, wholesome vegetable soup.

Take note, however.

These gardening methods only have a chance to work when pursued on but a single day of the entire year.

April 1.

So, hurry.

Americans Are Frying More

Americans may give lip service to healthy eating, but when it comes to putting out the dollars, fried foods are coming out ahead.

A recent consumer study conducted by the NPD Group, a market research firm, indicates that sales of deep fryers were up 32 percent for the first half of 1999, while sales of food steamers remained flat. This occurred despite the lack of new advertising or promotional campaigns, new brands, or significant product modifications.

The Soap and Detergent Association hypothesizes that consumers no longer feel guilty about occastional indulgences in fried foods. One out of every seven meals prepared at home contains one fried product. This is part of our national propensity for choosing the fastest method for cooking favorite foods.

The newest deep fat fryers simplify the cooking process for many foods, including tempura, fried chicken, and homemade French fries. An adjustable thermostat for oil temperature control is important for successfully frying foods that require lower temperatures, such as mushrooms. Removable non-stick bowls make clean up easier, while safety lids prevent burns and messy oil splatters. Cool-touch exteriors make the fryer's sides safe to touch, even when the temperature inside is hot.

Where fat consumption is a concern, new fryer models cook food rapidly at temperatures high enough to keep the food from absorbing excess oil. If the oil is not hot enough, a surface crust will not form. Without the crust, more oil is absorbed. Removing the food promptly will also cut down on the amount of oil that enters the food.

Household Chemicals, Pesticides and Child Safety

Although household chemicals can be beneficial to society, they can be dangerous if used carelessly or if they are not stored properly and out of the reach of children.

According to data collected from the American Association of Poison Control Centers, in 1997 alone, an estimated 72,590 young children and infants were involved in common household pesticide-related poisonings or exposures in the United States. An additional 22,184 children were exposed to or poisoned by household chlorine bleach.

Bathrooms and kitchens were cited as the areas in the home most likely to have improperly stored pesticides. Examples of some common household pesticides found in bathrooms and kitchens include roach sprays; chlorine bleach; kitchen and bath disinfectants; rat poison; insect and wasp sprays, repellents and baits; and, flea and tick shampoos and dips for pets. Other household pesticides include swimming pool chemicals and weed killers.

EPA has important regulatory authority over pesticides in the United States under the pesticide law (the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act). Since 1981, the law has required most residential-use pesticides with a signal word of "danger" or "warning" to be in child-resistant packaging. These are the pesticides which are most toxic to children. Child-resistant packaging is designed to prevent most children under the age of five from gaining access to the pesticide, or at least delay their access. However, individuals must also take precautions to protect children from accidental pesticide poisoning or exposures.

Recommendations for Preventing Accidental Poisoning:

•Always store pesticides away from children's reach, in a locked cabinet or garden shed. Child-proof safety latches may also be installed on cabinets and can be purchased at your local hardware store;

•Read the label first and follow the directions to the letter, including all precautions and restrictions;

•Before applying pesticides (indoors or outdoors), remove children and their toys as well as pets from the area and keep them away until the pesticide has dried or as long as recommended by the label;

•If your use of a pesticide is interrupted (perhaps by a phone call), properly reclose the package and be sure to leave the container out of the reach of children while you are gone;

•Never transfer pesticides to other containers that children may associate with food or drink;

•Never place rodent or insect baits where small children can get to them;

•Use child-resistent packaging properly by closing the container tightly after use;

•Alert others to the potential hazard of pesticides, especially care givers and grandparents;

•Teach children that "pesticides are poisons" - something they should not touch;

Glass Spots

Q. I have spots on my glasses after they are removed from the dishwasher. They are clean, but look dirty because of these spots. What can I do?

A. Spotting happens when water evaporates from a glass, leaving the minerals behind. There are more minerals in hard water, and this condition occurs in areas that have hard water.

Make sure to use the correct amount of dishwasher detergent. Using a rinse agent will also help. Rinse agents cause water to sheet off the dishes and speed drying, thus helping to prevent spots from forming.

Asparagus Recipes Get A-Plus For Nutrition And Taste

Turkey Asparagus Roll-Ups is a zesty main course that blends the flavor of asparagus with the home-cooked taste of turkey fillets. Asparagus recipes this week come filled with taste, nutrition, and appeal to spring up your tastebuds.

You know spring has arrive when fresh asparagus starts appearing in grocery stores and produce markets. The season for fresh asparagus lasts from February through June. Perfect for a light springtime vegetable, asparagus can add flavor and nutrition to any meal.

A member of the lily family, the edible part of asparagus is the young shoot of the plant, that ranges in color from green to white to purple. The vegetable is an excellent source of vitamin A and C. One serving of asparagus is only 25 calories and provides 10 percent of vitamin A, 15 percent of vitamin C, two percent of calcium, and two percent of iron. The vegetable is also a fair source of vitamin B.

When buying asparagus, look for firm, bright green or pale ivory stalks with tight tips. Asparagus plants live eight to ten years, and the spear's size indicates the age of the plant. If asparagus stems are tough, remove the outer layer with a vegetable peeler. You can also purchase canned or frozen asparagus.

Asparagus is best cooked the same day it's purchased. However, it will keep when tightly wrapped in a plastic bag for three to four days in the refrigerator. It can also be stored in a container standing upright in about an inch of water. Cover the container with a plastic bag.

Enjoy these scrumptious recipes to add asparagus-appeal to your next dinner.

Turkey Asparagus Roll-Ups

4 (8-12 ounce) turkey breast fillers
2 teaspoons Dijon-style mustard
½ cup shredded lowfat mozzarella cheese
12 to 16 small asparagus, cleaned, trimmed tablespoons each, minced parsley and shallots
Seasoned salt
Ground pepper
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
¼ cup dry white wine

Gently pound turkey to length of asparagus spears, spread each slide with ½ teaspoon mustard. Place 3 to 4 asparagus spears toward one end of long side of turkey fillet. Sprinkle each with 2 tablespoons cheese and 1½ teaspoon each parsley and shallots; sprinkle with seasoned salt and pepper. Roll up turkey to enclose asparagus. Fasten with skewers or toothpicks. Brown turkey rolls in oil in oven-proof skillet. Pour wine over and sprinkle with seasoned salt and pepper. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes or until turkey is cooked but not dry.

If desired, add 2 tablespoons water to pan drippings, heat and serve over turkey rolls. Makes 4 servings. Serve with cooked rice or pasta.

Cream of Asparagus Soup

½ cup chopped onion
1 tablespoon cooking oil
2 cans (14 ½ ounces each) chicken broth
2 ½ pounds fresh asparagus, trimmed and cut into 1-inch pieces
¼ teaspoon dried tarragon
¼ cup butter
¼ cup all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon white pepper
3 cups half-and-half cream
1 ½ teaspoons lemon juice
Shredded Swiss cheese

In a large saucepan over medium heat, saute onions in oil until tender. Add broth, asparagus, and tarragon. Simmer until asparagus is tender, about 8-10 minutes. In a blender or food processor, puree the asparagus, a third at a time, and set aside.

In a Dutch oven or soup kettle, melt butter. Stir in flour, salt, and peper. Cook and stir for 2 minutes or until golden. Gradually add cream. Stir in the pureed asparagus and lemon juice. Heat through. Garnish with cheese if desired. Yield: 8 servings (about 2 quarts).

Cheesy Asparagus Bites

½ cup diced onions
1 garlic clove, minced
2 tablespoons cooking oil
2 cups (8 ounces) shredded sharp cheddar cheese
¼ cup dry bread crumbs
2 tablespoons minced fresh parsley
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
⅛ to ¼ teaspoon dried oregano
⅛ teaspoon hot pepper sauce
4 eggs, beaten
1 pound fresh asparagus, trimmed and cut into ½-inch pieces.

In a skillet, saute onion and garlic in oil until tender. Combine cheese, bread crumbs, parsley, salt, pepper, oregano, and hot pepper sauce. Stir in the onion mixture and eggs. Cook asparagus in a small amount of water until crisp-tender, about 3-4 minutes; drain well.

Stir asparagus into cheese mixture. Pour into a greased 9-inch square baking pan. Bake at 350° for 30 minutes or until a knife inserted near center comes out clean. Let stand for 15 minutes. Cut into small squares. Serve warm. Yield: 5 dozen.

Asparagus, Apple, And Chicken Salad

1 cup cut fresh asparagus (1 inch pieces)
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
2 teaspoons honey
2 teaspoons minced fresh parsley
½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoons pepper
1 cup cubed cooked chicken
½ cup diced red apple
2 cups torn mixed greens
Alfalfa sprouts, optional

Cook asparagus in a small amount of water until crisp-tender, about 3 to 4 minutes. Drain and cool. In a bowl, combine the next six ingredients. Stir in the chicken, apple, and asparagus. Toss. Serve over greens. Garnish with alfalfa sprouts if desired. Yield: 3 servings.

Asparagus Bacon Quiche

1 unbaked pastry shell (9 inches)
1 pound fresh asparagus, trimmed and cut into 1-inch pieces
6 bacon strips, cooked and crumbled
3 eggs
1 ½ cups half and half cream
1 cup grated parmesan cheese, divided
1 tablespoon sliced green onions
1 teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
Pinch ground nutmeg

Line the unpricked pastry shell with a double thickness of heavy-duty foil. Bake at 450° for 5 minutes; remove foil. Bake 5 minutes more; remove from oven and set aside.

Cook asparagus in a small amount of water, until crisp-tender, about 3-4 minutes; drain well. Arrange bacon and asparagus in the crust. In a bowl, beat eggs. Add cream, 1¼ cup cheese, onions, sugar, salt, pepper, and nutmeg. Pour over asparagus. Sprinkle with remaining cheese. Bake at 400° for 10 minutes. reduce heat to 350°; bake 23-25 minutes longer or until a knife inserted near the center comes out clean. Yield: 6-8 servings.

Gingered Pork And Asparagus

6 tablespoons apple juice
6 tablespoons soy sauce
4 garlic cloves, minced
1 tablespoon ground ginger
1 pound pork tenderloin, thinly sliced
2 tablespoons cooking oil, divided

Here's a new way to cook fresh asparagus. The art of roasting produces a flavor that the asparagus lover will find hard to resist. If you use thin asparagus, shorten the cooking time, and if you use big, fat stalks, it might take a few minutes more. If you don't want to use the wine, use water in its place.

OVEN ROASTED ASPARAGUS

1 pound asparagus
2 cloves garlic, slivered
2 tablespoons water
2 tablespoons dry white wine or nonalcoholic white wine
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon olive oil
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper

Break off the tough ends from the asparagus spears. With a vegetable peeler, peel the bottom half of the asparagus stalks. Scatter the garlic in a 13-by-9-inch baking dish. Arrange the asparagus in a single layer. In a small bowl, combine the water, wine, lemon juice, oil, salt and pepper. Pour over the asparagus. Bake at 400 degrees for 10 minutes. Turn the asparagus over and roast for 8 to 10 minutes more, or until the asparagus are tender but slightly crisp and the liquid is almost gone. Makes 4 servings.

Charlie Gudeman, WPSX Cooks program host, and Barbara Miller, Penn State Cooperative Extension family living agent, are the guest cooks at the 2000 Homemaker Show to be held at the Central Christian High School in DuBois on April 8, starting at 12:30 p.m. Cooking demonstrations, displays, samples, door prizes, and lots of fun. Far Infrared Rays (FIR) Health Builder
Within the magnetic spectrum, while some rays, such as light, can be seen by the unaided human eye, most are totally invisible to us. Far Infrared Rays (FIR) are well beyond the ability of the naked eye to see. FIR is capable of penetrating deep into the human body. It can gently and delightfully elevate the body's temperature. When it does so, it helps to expand capillaries which stimulates blood circulation. This increases the body's energy reserve, and accelerates the metabolic exchange between blood and body tissue. That's not all! FIR can actually increase the body tissue's regenerative ability. It also reduces abnormalities in nervous system and helps the autonomous system function properly

ANSWER — Here's a recipe for All American Cornbread from R. Leinbach, East Earl.

All American Cornbread

2 cups biscuit mix
1 cup butter
1 cup half and half
1 cup yellow corn meal
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup sugar
2 eggs, slightly beaten

Scald cream with butter; add to a thoroughly mixed dry ingredients. Mix in eggs. Pour into greased and floured 13X9-inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Allow to stand several minutes before cutting. Yield 12 servings.

ANSWER — Pauline Feldman requested a recipe for Easter Pie. Here is an entirely different recipe from the one printed last week. Thanks to an anonymous reader for sending this one.

Easter Pie

1 cup ham
½ cup pepperoni
¾ cup hot sausage
Cut meat into small pieces.
2 boiled eggs, diced
½ cup mozzarella cheese, grated
½ cup parmesan cheese, grated

Mix meat, eggs, and cheese together. Put in large 9-10-inch unbaked pie shell.

Mix together two beaten eggs and 1 cup ricotta cheese. Pour over meat, eggs, and cheese in pie shell. Bake at 325 degrees for 45 minutes until golden brown. Serve warm.

Thanks to Pam Mummert, Glen Rock, for sending another version of Easter Pie.

Easter Hunt Pie

1 graham cracker pie crust
8-ounces cream cheese
14-ounces sweetened condensed milk
¾ cup cold water
1 small box instant vanilla pudding
1½ cups whipped cream topping (thawed)
16 miniature chocolate candy eggs

In large mixing bowl, beat cream cheese until fluffy; gradually beat in condensed milk until smooth. Add water and pudding, mix on low speed, beat until smooth. Gently stir in whipped topping. Spoon half of filling into pie crust and top with chocolate Easter egg candy; top with remaining filling. Chill three hours. Garnish with coconut and remaining candy eggs.

ANSWER — Jule Ann Harris, Olyphant, requested a recipe for tiramasu. Thanks to Mrs. Clarence Seibert, Fredericksburg, for sending a recipe.

Tiramasu

3 cups pound cake, cubed
2 envelopes Maxwell House Cafe Cappuccino, any flavor, divided
2 cups cold milk, divided
8-ounces cream cheese, soft
4-ounces Jell-O instant vanilla pudding and pie filling
2 cups whipped cream topping

Cover bottom of 8-inch square dish with cake cubes. Dissolve one envelope cappuccino in a half cup milk. Spinkle over cake.

Beat cream cheese in large bowl with electric mixer, gradually stir in remaining 1½ cups milk until smooth. Add pudding mix and remaining envelope cappuccino. Beat on low speed until blended. Stir in whipped cream. Spoon over cake in square dish.

Refrigerate two hours or until ready to serve. Serves 6.

ANSWER — Sandy Truckner, Avonmore, wanted a recipe for Eskimo Cookies. Thanks to a reader who sent in a recipe; however, it contains rolled oats. Sandy had requested a recipe without the rolled oats. Here is the one sent in, but if anyone has another one, please send it.

Eskimo Cookies

1½ sticks butter
¾ cup peanut butter
1 tablespoon water
3 tablespoons cocoa
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups oatmeal

Mix and refrigerate overnight. Shape into 24 balls and roll in confectioners' sugar.

ANSWER — Thanks to Debby Groff, Riegelsville, for sending a recipe in request to a reader's for a bread filling casserole.

Easy Stuffing Casserole

2 cups finely chopped celery
1 medium onion, chopped
½ cup butter
14-ounce package herb-seasoned cubed stuffing (not Stove Top)
1 teaspoon leaf sage, crumbled
1 can condensed chicken broth
1½ cups water

Cook celery and onion in butter until tender but not brown, about 15 minutes. Combine stuffing and sage in large bowl. Add celery-onion mixture, chicken broth, and water. Toss until well mixed. Place in greased 13x9-inch baking dish. Cover with foil. Bake at 325 degrees for one hour.

ANSWER — For K. Moyer, Summerville, here is a basic bread recipe with variations sent in by Dorothy Stoms, Deerfield, N.J.

Breads With Yeast

1 cup water
1 cake yeast
6 cups sifted, enriched flour

(Turn to Page B9)

Asparagus

1 pound fresh asparagus, cut into 1-inch pieces
1-½ teaspoons cornstarch
Hot cooked rice, optional

n a large resealable plastic bag or shallow glass container, combine the first four ingredients Remove ⅓ cup and set aside. Add pork to remaining marinade; seal bag or cover container, and turn to coat. Refrigerate for 1 hour.

In a large skillet or wok over medium-high heat, stir-fry half of the pork in 1 tablespoon oil for 2-3 minutes or until no longer pink Remove pork with slotted spoon set aside. Repeat with remaining pork and oil.

In same skillet, stir-fry the asparagus for 2-3 minutes or until crisp-tender. Stir cornstarch into reserved marinade; add to skillet. Bring to boil; cook and stir for 2 minutes or until thickened. Return pork to skillet and heat through. Yield: 4 servings.

Sunny Asparagus Tart

1½ cups all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon caraway seeds
⅛ teaspoon salt
5 tablespoon cold butter
2 tablespoons cold shortening
3 to 5 tablespoons ice water

FILLING:

1 ½ pounds fresh asparagus
1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese, softened
1 egg yolk
1 cup whipping cream
3 eggs
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon white pepper
¼ pound thinly sliced fully cooked ham, julienned
⅓ cup grated parmesan cheese

In a bowl, combine flour, caraway, and salt; cut in butter and shortening until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Sprinkle with water, 1 tablespoon at a time. Stir with a fork until dough can be formed into a ball.

On a floured surface, roll dough to fit a 10-inch tart pan. Place dough in pan. Freeze for 10 minutes. Cut the asparagus into 2 ½ inch pieces. Set tips aside. Cut remaining pieces in half. Cook all of the asparagus in a small amount of water until crisp-tender, about 3 to 4 minutes. Drain.

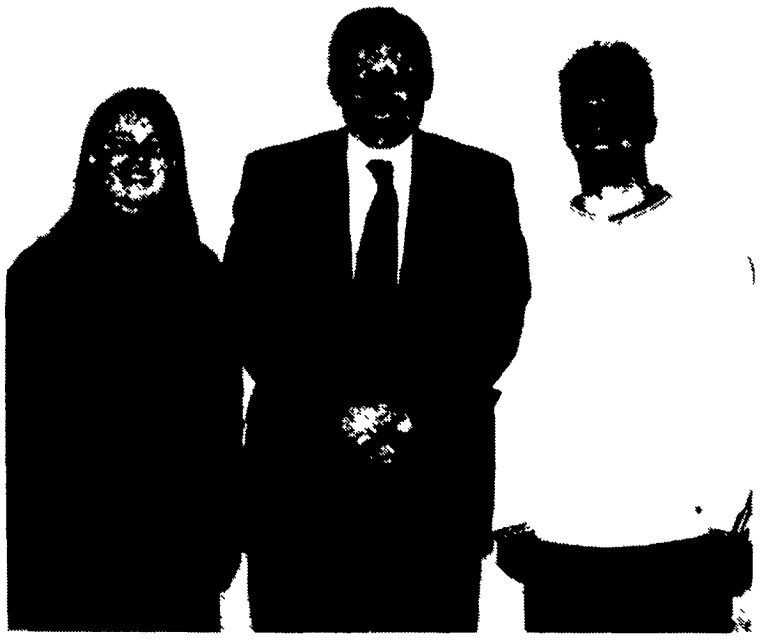
In a mixing bowl, combine the cream cheese and egg yolk. Gradually add cream (mixture will be slightly lumpy.) Beat in eggs, one at a time. Add salt and peper. Place ham and asparagus pieces (no tips) over crust; pour half of the cream cheese mixture over top. Bake at 425° for 15 minutes. Pour remaining cream cheese mixture over top. Arrange asparagus tips on top of tart; sprinkle with cheese. Bake at 375° for 40 minutes or until a knife in near center comes out clean. Let stand for 15 minutes before cutting. Yield: 6 - 8 servings.

the Signature FFA of Success

Grassland FFA

Grassland FFA Chapter had three of this year's 42 American Degree recipients from Pennsylvania. Dr. Larry Burkhart, Elanco School District Superintendent, recently presented this prestigious degree to Ken Martin, Keith Sauder, and Jessica Weaver.

Ken Martin is the son of Lelan and Marilyn Martin of East Earl. Ken had a variety of SAE projects and was involved in poultry judging during his FFA career. Ken has served in several offices in the Grassland Chapter. He also went on to serve as Pennsylvania FFA Sentinel. Ken is currently in Baltimore, Maryland, training for a youth evangelism service assignment.



Grassland FFA American Degree recipients Jessica Weaver and Keith Sauder are being congratulated by Dr. Larry Burkhart. Also receiving the degree was Ken Martin.

Keith Sauder is the son of Randy and Linda Sauder of East Earl. Keith was also a member of the poultry judging team and served as chapter reporter. Included in Ken's SAE projects were pleasure horses, home improvement, and work experience. Ken has always enjoyed working with his hands, and his talents earned him first place in the Pennsylvania Agricultural Mechanics Proficiency Award Competition. He also went on to be a national semi-finalist. Ken is currently employed by New Holland Concrete.

Jessica Weaver is the daughter of John and Martha Weaver of Denver. Jessica had SAE projects revolving around wildlife conservation and work experience. She was recognized on the state level for her wildlife project. Jessica has served as a chapter president and went on to be elected president of the Penn State Collegiate FFA Chapter. She has also received several scholarships to help her achieve a degree in Agricultural Education. She is currently student teaching at Oley Valley High School in Berks County.

Cook's Corner

1 cup milk
2 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons salt
1 to 2 tablespoons shortening

Scald milk and add sugar, salt, shortening, and water. Cool to lukewarm. Soften yeast in ¼ cup lukewarm water and add to milk mixture. Add flour gradually, mixing well, to make a stiff dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl, cover and let rise until doubled in bulk; punch down and let rise again. Continue as above.

For a richer bread: Use one cup milk in place of one cup water; use two tablespoons honey, corn syrup or molasses in place of sugar.

Cracked wheat: Use 4 cups cracked wheat for four cups white flour.

Graham: Use six cups graham flour for 6 cups white flour.

Oatmeal: Use four cups oatmeal for 4 cups white flour.

Raisin: Add 2 cups raisins or chopped prunes or nuts. Brown sugar may be used instead of granulated and grated orange or lemon rind added.

Whole wheat flour: Use six cups whole wheat flour for six cups white flour. Use ¼ cup molasses instead of sugar.

Kick Butts

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) – Bedford County has one of the most active TATU or Teens Against Tobacco Use Coalitions in the state.

Setting high standards these teens from Bedford, Everett, Northern Bedford, Hyndman, Tussey Mountain, and Chestnut Ridge students form the county coalition. Participants are good scholars, and active in school sports or other extra curricular activities. Advisors are volunteer high school teachers, Joyce Herncane, Trish Beidle, Tess Crawford, Ed Beidle, Phil Logue, and Julie Evans.

A fall conference kicks off the season with more then 100 students attending the all day event annually. It's a day for planning and getting ideas for upcoming activities.

This year, the students plan to hold a candlelight vigil on April 13, in front of the Bedford County Courthouse. Following an evening of singing and short speeches, the students will lead a candlelighting ceremony asking each participant to remember a loved one who has died as the result of smoking.

April is a big month for Bedford County's TATU and on April 15, the annual billboards will go into place. Located at such strategic spots as along Route 30, Route 220, and Route 26 leading into Saxton, the billboards, bearing anti tobacco messages, are all designed by the students.

During "Kick Butts" weeks which is also held in April, high school students help to educate the younger generation with a series of assemblies or puppet shows, written by the teens mostly.

Radio spots will be aired on local stations throughout the spring with messages created by the students such as this one from Northern Bedford.

"Each year there are more than 400,000 deaths in the United States caused by smoking-related illnesses."

"Is that how you want to die?"

"When you choose to smoke, you're not only hurting yourself but others too...

"It's..

"Smoking kills!"

"Need I say more?"

Students from the Bedford County Coalitions attend the state conference in March.

They do an annual survey to check their own progress in each individual school. This year, Northern Bedford took a poll at a wrestling match to find that out of 137 individuals interviewed, 26 smoked and 111 did not.

Ten of those smoking smoked cigarettes, 5 used smokeless tobacco, and one smoked cigars.

Thirty two of those answering the questions said that someone in their household smokes while 96 households did not have members who smoked.

Ninety one were concerned with the effects of second hand smoke and 37 were not.

All of those who did not smoke preferred a home that was smoke free.

Another survey was done by inserting a questionnaire into the center of the local Chamber of Commerce paper asking businesses to notify the coalition if they are smoke free.

Students from Chestnut Ridge computer designed a clever "thank you," which will be framed and presented to each answering business.

One of the Bedford High School activities, which has been very successful was the creation of an activity book for elementary students.

TATU has become a prestigious organization in Bedford County schools. When Tussey Mountain lost their long time volunteer leader, Glenn Young, this year, the students were so upset they found a replacement leader. "Some of them want to go into health related fields and felt it was very important to have an organization such as this," says their advisor, Phil Logue.

TATU even inspired a Hyndman High School student to write a song called, "Ashtray Mama" which will be sung on the radio this spring.

Students from Bedford High School present a puppet show to second graders. Travis Leap, Hyndman, entertains his peers with a self-written song, "Ashtray Mama"

When You Wish...
What do you see when you look up at the night sky? If it's clear, you can probably see thousands of stars. But did you know there are thousands more that are not visible to the naked eye?
The universe has billions of galaxies, and each galaxy has hundreds of billions of stars. The stars you can see when you look up at the sky are in our own galaxy, which is called the Milky Way.
Along with the stars in each galaxy, there are clouds of dust and gas. Stars are actually big balls of gas, mostly hydrogen, that give off heat and light. They are born from the clouds of dust and gas. As more and more gas is pulled into a cloud, the cloud starts to spin. Atoms of gas bump into each other. As the bumping gets faster and faster, they create heat energy, which makes the cloud hotter and hotter. Once it gets so hot, the cloud starts to glow.
The glowing cloud is known as a protostar. The protostar will continue to grow, and the bigger the star gets, the longer it will live.

Ida's Notebook

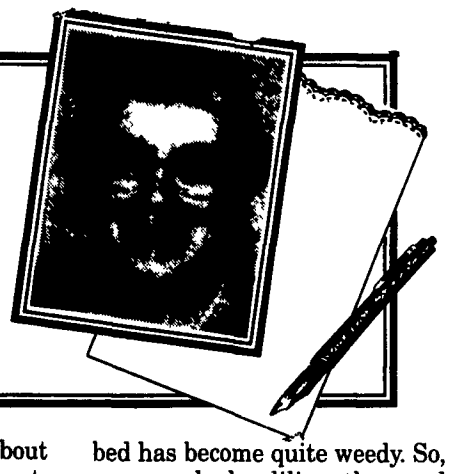
Ida Risser



The leisure of winter is about over, and we must think of outside work again. Our strawberry bed has become quite weedy. So, we worked diligently and cleaned it for spring. It may need to be replaced as it was planted eight years ago.

My husband has purchased some blueberry bushes and is trying to dig holes for them. They like an acid soil and so will need special care. We thought that we had a Bartlett pear tree, but last fall's harvest proved otherwise. Thus, he has bought another tree.

The forsythia and pussy willow, that I planted when we moved here, are in full bloom. I always like to put some in the house. This year my small, red tulips might not bloom around the mailbox as I see only leaves.

I've been looking at the names of vegetables in the Landis Valley Museum's "Heirloom Seed Project." They certainly sound German – Huberschmidt ground cherry, Riesentraube tomato, and Winnigstadt cabbage. The project has many herbs and ornamentals for sale too.

At the museum they have planted a replica of a settler's garden. It is a four-square raised garden with dirt paths. Here they raise some of the heirloom seeds that can be purchased in the spring.

As a youth my grandfather, John Shreiner, took me to visit Henry and George Landis whose collection started the museum. At that time they lived in the two-story frame house on the grounds. They were bachelors and had many cats living with them. They surely never realized how their collection of antiques would be used.

Marianne Moody Crowned New York State Dairy Princess

SYRACUSE, NY – Marianne Moody, from Hamden, New York, is the newly-crowned 2000-2001 New York State Dairy Princess. Having served as the Delaware County Dairy Princess since spring, Moody will devote an additional year promoting milk and dairy products in conjunction with the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADACA). As state princess, Moody received a $1,200 scholarship and will represent ADADC at county dairy princess pageants, farm meetings, and a variety of special events. In addition, she will help train new county promoters at seminars and workshops.

The 17-year-old daughter of Bill and Patsy Moody, Marianne is a senior at Delaware Academy. She lives and works on her family's 220-cow dairy farm and enjoys caring for and showing her Holstein and Jersey cows. Marianne is involved in National Honor Society, Jersey Cattle Club, 4-H Holstein Club, and is serving as the District 4 President of FFA. In college, Marianne plans to study agriculture or dairy science.

Cairy Norman of Macedon, New York, in Wayne County, was named the First Alternate State Princess. She received a $700 scholarship. Norman is the 16-year-old daughter of Suzanne Norman and the granddaughter of Jim and Arlene Airy. She is very active in 4-H, where she shows her own registered Holsteins at the county fair.

Christine Lee Weissmann of Callicoon Center, New York, in Sullivan County, was selected as the Second Alternate State Princess, receiving a $600 scholarship. Weissman also received $100 for outstanding performance in speech presentation, $200 for outstanding public relations efforts, and $100 for her performance on a product knowledge exam. Ewissman is the 17-year-old daughter of James and Evelyn Weissman, and a graduate of Jeffersonville Youngsville Central School. She is an active 10-year member of 4-H, and plans to spend her future processing the milk on her family's farm. This is her first year in the dairy princess program.

Like the state princess, alternate princesses will represent ADADC at county dairy princess pageants, help train new county promoters at seminars and workshops, and will assist the state princess with various appearances throughout the state.

Other finalists were: Andrea Leach, Cortland, New York, Cortland County; Jennifer Peck, Antwerp, New York, Jefferson County; Megan White, Slate Hill, New York, Orange County; and Jessica Degan, Mount Vision, New York, Ostego County.

Twenty-seven county dairy princesses competed in the state pageant, vying for the title relinquished by reigning princess JoAnn DeBlock, of Orange County, New York. The judges were looking for the young women who most effectively promote milk and dairy products, based on a personal interview, impromptu and prepared adult speeches, a written communications test, product knowledge test, and informal interaction with others. Judges evaluated the contestants on their communication skills, knowledge of milk and dairy products, poise, and personality.

Judges were Stephanie Meyers, Director of Communications and Education for the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers, in Reston, VA; Mark Giles, Agway Agricultural Products; and Jessica Chittendan, Assistant Director of Communications, New York Farm Bureau and 1991-92 New York State Dairy Princess.

In addition to Christine Weissmann, two other girls received recognition for their outstanding speech performances. Susan Peter, of Casleton-on-the-Hudson, New York, in Rennselaer County; and Andrea Leach of Cortland, New York, in Cortland County were each presented with a check for $100, courtesy of New York Farm Bureau.

Two jobs, one tool: It's a tedder and a rake

The Model 255 rake tedder is a flexible machine — it's the tedder that also rakes.

- Rake a swath into a windrow
- Rake two windrows into one
- Turn windrows for faster drying
- Move crop away from fences or borders
- Ted a 10½-foot area to fluff up wet, matted-down crop for quick drying

And you can change the "255" from one function to another without tools!

Put quality silage under wraps

New Holland round bale wrappers are the low-cost alternative to traditional silage storage—they seal your silage bales in "mini silos". You can harvest silage during peak feed quality, store it with greater flexibility, and feed it more efficiently with less waste.

Choose from two models:

- Model B27P is an economic utility wrapper for medium-volume silage producers
- Model B37P is ideal for custom harvesters or operations wrapping large volumes of bales

Both offer a side-mounted lifting arm, three-belt turntable, two large side-support rollers, and cable controls. The B37P is available with computer controls.

Idella Bender, activities director at the Goodwill Mennonite Home, Grantsville, Maryland, knows the value of a volunteer. With their help, the Goodwill activities department has a very successful crafts program which generates revenues for residents to do and have fun things.

Salute To Volunteers

GRANTSVILLE (Md.) – As far as Idella Bender is concerned, you need look only for the nearest volunteer to see beauty being magnified.

In the activities department at the Goodwill Mennonite Home where she holds the position of director, Bender cites a long list of good things done for residents by volunteers.

"The biggest thing for volunteers is the social interaction," She says.

Elsie Schrock lives near enough to the facility that on the days she goes there to volunteer, Schrock can walk from her home.

"I've been volunteering for 10 years," she said, smiling broadly. I enjoy visiting with older people. It's a real blessing."

Mary Alice Skidmore who spruces up and makes a charming picture behind a small hill of foam rubber she has snipped for animal and doll stuffings, seems to be likeminded.

Four years ago, when Skidmore moved into the Goodwill Retirement Village, she too, joined the volunteer ranks at the nursing facility.

I'm a walker," she reports. "I enjoy it (volunteering) and feel it is useful. I enjoy being with patients and working with them."

Selfless individuals like Schrock, Skidmore and numerous others are people who instill value to the word "Volunteer." During April 9-15 – National Volunteer Week – the Points of Light Foundation puts volunteers across the country in the spotlight.

Recently, Bender's poem entitled "Volunteers Magnify Beauty" was published in 'Creative Forecasting," a national magazine for volunteers. Shirley Teets, Bender's assistant director, submitted the piece which rhythmically recounts by name, the volunteers and what they do at Goodwill Home.

What makes the volunteer so special is the choice to serve. The high schoolers coming to fulfill community service requirements may be an exception, however, they deserve credit for the significant contributions to boost the residents' morale.

Their natural vitality is stimulating to the residents when young people and babies are around them. So once a year there is Baby Day. Mothers bring their preschool children to play at the home and the residents lap it up.

"Sometimes," Bender says, "We get 'grumped' at because there weren't enough babies to go around."

The craft activities at Goodwill are tremendously successful, thanks to volunteer helpers and home sewers.

When finished, the sale outlets for Goodwill Home crafts are area festivals, local craft shops and shopping malls. Two outlets, however are in Pennsylvania at East Earl and Smicksburg.

The crafts include ceramics, stuffed geese, chicken and cat doorstops; yo-yo clowns that attract college kids; teddy bears and dolls, sock monkeys, and Amish dolls.

"The Amish dolls we cannot make fast enough," Bender said.

The sales generate revenues invested for extracurricular activities for the residents. Trips to the mall, for instance, parties, and other surprises. They do, however, remember to give something back.

"At Christmas we buy gifts and wrap them for the Union Rescue Mission in Cumberland (Md.), "Bender reported.

To an observer on a Friday afternoon, Elsie Schrock might be holding court at an oblong table where she leads the ladies in her charge to make the individual yo-yos.

The residents, chattering happily, are eager to sew. First, however, Schrock takes one from a stack of precut 6-inch rounds of fabric, joins it and a smaller liner, makes a few stitches with the threaded needle and turns under the edge as she goes.

It is ready for the resident to continue the process. When finished Schrock securely knots the thread.

Some 70 yo-yos are needed for a clown. Fourteen for each arm, leg, and body.

Surrounded by chunks of foam rubber, Skidmore works at another table. On the floor a large cardboard box is overflowing with plastic bags holding the cut up foam bits

Hers is tedious work and the snipped pieces not easily controlled. They are the stuffings for the sassy goose, the chubby chicken, the cat and cuddly animals.

"We don't go anywhere that we don't look for a pattern," Bender said, amused. "The goose we found in North Carolina."

It was a volunteer who inaugurated Current Event Day by resourcing the local newspapers. His foresight found the more alert residents paying closer attention to televised newcasts.

They, moreover, brought what they remembered to the next discussion about the happenings of the day. The rising gasoline, in fact, was a topic they understood.

Another volunteer negotiated the bird watching project that collects data for studies at Cornell University, according to Elaine Yoder, another staff member.

Volunteers help residents accomplish the seed growing project in spring.

Add balloon tennis, bingo, physical exercises, evening programs, and entertainment. Most importantly, there is Chapel for the residents' spiritual food and edification.

We can't forget those who, once a year, make homemade ice cream for the home and those in summer who tackle the outer premises. These are skilled in maintenance, gardening, and landscaping. They prefer the fresh air and sunshine.

So it seems when it comes to the volunteer's contribution to society, only his or her imagination and the sky itself, are the limits of what they might do for others.

Following is Bender's poem:

Mary Alice Skidmore

Here volunteer Elsie Schrock joyfully tackles the making of yo-yos for the popular yo-yo clowns. Around Schrock are residents waiting for her to give them a threaded needle so they, too, can begin sewing.

VOLUNTEERS MAGNIFY BEAUTY

There is beauty in reflection
Much beauty does abound
The volunteers among us
Do magnify it all around.

The sewers work behind the scenes
Cats, teddy bears and geese they do produce
It's Elsie Green, Mary Alice and Barbara
That put the machines to use.

Stitch by stitch, machine a buzz
The dolls, dresses, cushions and hats to make
Are Vera, Freda, Mary and Thelma
They trust the stitch won't break.

From slip to bisque the project forms
And Dimples brings ceramics
Mary Alice Helps with caring hand
We learn of its dynamics.

Monday afternoon there is Bingo
A game that's played for fun
Charles, Maxine, Ruth, Goldie, Edna, Merrill and Anna
Keep it going on the run.

Miriam Loos' fine tuning leads That's exercise you see
With moving arms, legs and all
They are busy as bees.

What happens in the world about us
May be lost and miss our ears
But here come Frank and Waynard
With current events to calm those fears.

You want to know what's happening
Within the Goodwill door
As Clara and Miriam print it
The world knows more and more
Catherine does the final touch
Her dedication is a delight
She finishes cushions and dolls
Keeping our world all right.

Balloon tennis brings so much fun.
There's just no time to spare
As Frank, Miriam, Waynard, Kristine and Ray
Keep balloons flying in the air.

Be it music or a puzzle
Things so numerous he will do
Just tell Jack what is needed
Our projects he will pursue.

Cliff says he's the drafted one
But much to our great pleasure
He arrives with loads of foam
Which we just can't measure.

With foam-snipping for cushions
And yo-yos on a pile
Kathy, Darla, Lena, Elsie, Ella and Mary Alice
Encourage with many smiles.

To market go our numerous items
We go to malls and shows
There is Esther selling with vigor
Trusting the sales to grow.

Homemade ice cream from a freezer
Oh, what a delight to eat
To the mall or Summerfest
Elvin and vera making life sweet

In rooms they go for visits
And residents they do bring
It's Christy and Theresa
That cause our hearts to sing.

All wrapped in finest blessings
In activities we do know
That our volunteers magnify beauty
And loads of love they show.

New York Dairy Princess

Lisa Marie Caskins, of Franklin County was selected as "Miss Congeniality" by the contestants and recognized as the dairy princess who demonstrated the most friendliness and cooperative spirit of competition. She received $100, courtesy of Ron Trinca Photography.

In addition to Weissmann, Susan Peter, of Castleton-on-the-Hudson, New York, in Rensselaer County, and Andrea Leach of Cortland, New York, also each received $100 for their performance on a product knowledge exam. NYS Dairy Foods Association sponsored the award.

Three girls were recognized for outstanding performance on a written communications test. Megan White, of Slate Hill, New York, in Orange County; Annelise Braun, of Canastota, New York, in Madison County; and Kim Corscadden, of Richville, New York, in St. Lawrence County each received $100, courtesy of County Folks newspapers.

Also, in addition to Weissmann, two girls were recognized for outstanding efforts in public relations events, Nichole Lee Stoltzfus of Lowville, New York, in Lewis County; and Jennifer Peck of Antwerp, New York, in Jefferson County; received $150 and $100 awards, respectively. The award was sponsored by Latorra, Paul and McCann, Inc.

The dairy princess program is designed to promote the consumption and sale of milk and dairy products to consumers on the local level through elementary school programs, generating newspaper articles, and giving speeches to community groups and farmer organizations. Focused on the most effective ways to increase milk consumption, the program is designed to complement the goals of ADADC.

The 1998-99 Niagara-Orleans County Dairy Princess court was recognized for outstanding promotion efforts, performing 265 promotions, with a dollar value of more than $3500. The court now holds the record for the most newspaper articles achieved during a promotion reign, with a total of 128. Members were: Dairy Princess, Claudette Walck; Alternate Dairy Princess, April Rowcliffe; and Ambassadors Karen Glick, Jennifer McCollum and Stephanie Peglow.

The Promoter of the Year award is presented in memory of Robert S. Turner, a former ADADC Chief Executive Officer and dairy farmer who was a strong supporter of the Dairy Princess Program. The $500 award is provided by the Turner family and ADADC.

Two Golden Cow awards were presented to individuals who demonstrated outstanding service and dedication to local dairy promotion in New York State. Recipients were Brian Waters of Niagara-Orleans County, who was recognized for his involvement in the dairy princess program over the last ten years, and is currently chairman of his local dairy promotion committee; and Florence Brown of Sullivan County, who has been part of her county committee for more than 15 years.

Two scholarships were also presented at the pageant. Sarah Van Orden, a sophomore at Cornell University and former Greene County Dairy Princess, received the 1999 Leo Briggs Memorial Scholarship. This $500 award is presented to an individual who has exhibited leadership in dairy promotion, and is interested in agriculture or dairy product nutrition.

The ADADC Memorial Scholarship was presented to Brenda Armstrong of Jordansville, New York, 1996-97 Herkimer County Dairy Princess. The $500 award is presented to a former dairy princess who is pursuing a career in dairy product marketing, dairy manufacturing, home economics, ag communications, or journalism.

Lowfat Baking

Dessert can be an every day event if you watch portion sizes and experiment with creative ways to cut fat without sacrificing flavor When baking your own treats, try these low-fat substitutions:

•Use cake or pastry flour instead of all-purpose flour to maintain moistness that is sometimes lost when following a fat-free recipe. Cake flour also enhances tenderness and delivers a product with a fine grain and texture.

•Use unsweetened cocoa powder instead of baking chocolate. Two ounces of baking chocolate equal 1/3 cup of unsweetened cocoa powder.

•Replace traditional ingredients with "mini" versions. For example, 1/2 cup mini chocolate chips works the same as one cup of full-sized chips.

•Use two egg whites instead of one whole egg.

•Use one cup of buttermilk instead of whole milk.

•Use 1/2 cup of unsweetened applesauce or pureed prunes instead of 1/2 cup oil Prunes taste best in spicy treats such as gingerbread; applesauce works best in heavier desserts

•Replace one cup of whipped cream with one cup of non-dairy light whipped topping

You ask You answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Or, you may e-mail questions and answers to lgood.eph@lnpnews.com

Please clarify what question you are answering when responding.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it.

Farm Women Societies

Lancaster Society 18

Lancaster Farm Women Society 18 met March 18 at the home of Mrs. Richard Hershey. Mae Weaver read the Biblical account of a woman whose life played a major role in timely events.

Ruth Landis, president, conducted the business meeting. Spring Rally will be held at the Lebanon Expo Center in May. An interesting bus trip is scheduled June 20. Price is $35. Reports of the Farm Show Convention were given by Ruth Rohrer and Ruth Landis.

The program, "T.M.I. and Nuclear Energy," by David Carl of General Public Utilities Corporation revealed how tightly controlled government regulations affect energy companies.

The business meeting committee reports and roll call ended the meeting followed by homemade ice cream and other refreshments.

Spring Blooms At Hershey Gardens

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Hershey Gardens opens today with an amazing array of colors and varieties in the budding trees, shrubs, and 10,000 tulips.

Daily hours are from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Regular admission is $6 for adults, $5.50 for seniors, $3 for youth 3-15, and children under 3 are free. Since the displays are just beginning to bud, admission is half price from now through April 14.

Lancaster Society 8

The Lancaster Society of Farm Women 8 met on March 1 at the Mount Joy Culinary Arts Center for lunch. Members toured the Milanof-Schock Library in Mount Joy. A brief business meeting was held in the library's community room.

On March 8, members traveled to Willow Street where they were luncheon guests of Society 22. Elva Hurst, chalk artist, presented a drawing and a message on farm memories.

The next meeting will be held at Reich's Church, Stackstown Rd., Maytown, on April 12 at 1 p.m. After dessert, a business meeting will be conducted.

Cumberland Co. Dairy Club

The 44th Annual Cumberland County Dairy Club Banquet was held at New Hope Church Annex at 7 p.m. on Monday, March 13. After the meeting was called to order by President Thomas Harwood and the group was served dinner, the program began.

Vice President Amy Kulick gave the answers to the "Table Fun" paper, and then Harwood introduced the officers. He called on Kathy Walton and Sharon Hammond to present awards and recognition to members and leaders.

Harwood then introduced Scott Hodgson to present the Outstanding First Year Member Award, presented to Joe Arnold and Mark Hammond. The award was sponsored by Cumberland Valley Cooperative.

Jerry Ogline presented the Outstanding 4-H Member award to Jason Nailor. The award was sponsored by AgChoice Farm Credit, ACA. Sallie Gregory then presented the 4-H Achievement Award to Zach Travis, and Duane Duncan presented the Merle Miller Memorial Award to Sonya Rinker.

Once all of the awards were presented, Kathy Walton read a poem to the members' parents to thank them for their help through the past year. Duncan showed slides, which included recent pictures of members and older pictures of the members' sisters, brothers, and parents.

The next meeting will be held on April 10 at the Second Presbyterian Church in Carlisle at 7:30 p.m.

Perry Co. Dairy Club

Members completing projects for 1999 were Matt Crouse, Tim Crouse, Gretchen Haas, Joe Haas, Erica Kresge, Cole McClaughlin, Amanda Myers, Tyler Myers, Darryl Myers, Amber Rock, Amanda Rock, Matt Schoenfelt, and Brett Shelley. The members received pins and certificates for their work.

Five members were rewarded for the outstanding job they did in completing their project books. The junior division was won by Erica Kresge, daughter of Lenard and Amy Kresge of Loysville. Gretchen Haas received second place. Her parents are Gary and Lucinda Haas of Millerstown.

Amanda Myers of Millerstown had the high score in the senior division. She is the daughter of Earl and Linda Myers. There was a tie for second place between Cole McLaughlin, son of Dave and Patti McLaughlin of Elliotsburg, and Matt Crouse, son of Terry and Stephanie Crouse of Newport.

Deckertown 4-H Club

The Deckertown 4-H Club held its first meeting on February 5. The new officers are Jaimie Himka, president; Ben Schack, vice president; Nancy Acker, secretary; Meggie Klees, treasurer; and Elaine Mackey, news reporter. The club planned meetings, community service, and activities for the upcoming year. They also did project enrollment. After the meeting, club members enjoyed sleigh riding.

Susquehanna County 4-H

The North Jackson Ag held its first meeting of 2000 at the Carey's home on March 5. New officers elected during the meeting included Abby Onyon, president; Beth Giangrieco, vice president; Katie Onyon, secretary; Tim Carey, treasurer; Eileen Walker, news reporter; Jessica Sartell and Chelsey Saam, historian; and Holly Carey, Daniel Gow, and Aaron Onyon, song and game leaders.

After the election of officers, enrollment forms were completed and upcoming events were discussed. The next meeting will be held April 1 with bowling at Valley Lanes and pizza at the Onyon's after bowling.

A new Harford area community 4-H club, Creatures and Creations, held their meeting with five members present. Members practiced their archery skills, then elected club officers.

New officers include Tim Graf, president; Karl McDonald, vice president; Patricia Albrecht, secretary; and Eli Wilson, treasurer. The group discussed dues, fundraisers, and community service projects during the meeting.

Franklin Co. Dairy

The annual Franklin County Dairy Calf Sale will be held on Saturday, April 15, at 7 p.m. The sale will be held at the C.V. Antique Engine Show Grounds in Chambersburg. Take Route 30 West from Chambersburg for five miles to Twin Bridge Road. Turn right onto Twin Bridge Road and proceed for approximately 1.5 miles. Bear left at the Twin Bridge Campground office onto Criders Church Road and proceed a short distance to Peckman Drive. Turn left onto Peckman Drive and the show grounds entrance will be on your left.

The sale, which is open to the public, will feature approximately twenty calves and ten embryos. Franklin County 4-H Dairy Council sponsors the sale with the commission fees going to support 4-H Dairy Club educational activities in the county. This year's chairman is Larry Harshman, Chambersburg. His telephone number is (717) 597-7039. Sale catalogues will be available at the Franklin County Extension Officer at (717) 263-9226.

Lancaster County Clubs

The Lancaster County 4-H Horse Production Club will have its organizational meeeting on Monday, April 10, in the basement of the Farm and Home Center, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

For more information about joining the club, contact Lori Little, Extension Agent, at the Lancaster County Cooperative Extension Office at (717) 394-6851.

Northampton Butterfly Club

How does a catepillar turn into a beautiful Monarch butterfly? Explore the magic of this incredible transformation with the new 4-H Butterfly Club. Learn how to raise caterpillars and care for the chrysalis, preserve and display insects for a collection, and much more. There is no charge to join the club. All that is needed is an enthusaism to learn and have fun.

The first meeting will be held on Sunday, May 7, at 2 p.m. at Lisa Beltz' house, 3415 Mountain View Drive in Danielsville. Anyone between the ages of 8 and 18 is welcome to join. Please register by Monday, April 17, by calling either 4-H leader Lisa Beltz at (610) 767-5938 or Phyllis Laufer at the 4-H officer, (610) 746-1970.

Lackawanna Co. 4-H Club

Lackawanna County 4-Hers will be celebrating Pennsylvania 4-H week on March 24 and 25 at the Viewmont Mall in Dickson City. Members will be displaying completed projects and presenting demonstrations on a variety of topics such as sewing, cooking, and gardening. Ribbon cuttin ceremonies will kick off the event at 4 p.m. on the 24.

In Lackawanna County, nearly 4,000 youth and 230 adult volunteers are involved in 4-H programs. For more information about Lackawanna 4-H, visit the Viewmonth Mall exhibits on the 24 or 25 or call the Penn State Cooperative Extension Office at (570) 963-6842.

Susquehanna Co. 4-H Club

The Sizzlin' Steaks 4-H club met at Bill and Judy Mitchell's house on February 27. After pledges were led by Brad Fisher and Christina Zick, the club annouced that it would pay for its share of the work being done at the beef barn. The club also requested 4-Hers with beef projects to obtain trophy sponsors. Other annoucements were: Beef will not be fitted in the ring this year, beef projects will be doing rate of gain, and a livestock clinic will be held in July. The club anounced its next meeting on April 30 at the Mitchells.

Wayne Co. 4-H Clubs

If you have heard of 4-H, you are probably thinking animals and cooking. But Wayne County wants everyone to know that 4-H is more than you ever imagined.

The Wayne County 4-H program will sponsor an informal meeting on Wednesday evening, March 22, at 7 p.m. at the Extension Office in the Courthouse. This open house will provide an overview of 4-H programs and field questions about the ever-growing youth program. There are currently 23 community and project clubs in Wayne County with more than 575 children participating. Through use of volunteers, children are introduced to an informal educational program and much more. The hands-on approach encouraged with 4-H exposes youngsters to new experiences and responsibilities.

Wayne County 4-H invites anyone interested in 4-H to attend the informal meeting.

The Wayne County 4-H program will also hold their second annual "4-H at the Mall" event on Saturday, March 18. This public educational display promoting the nationally renown 4-H youth program is open to the public on the 18 from 12 noon to 2 p.m. at the "Fun 'N Games" Pizza Hut Complex. There is no charge to attend this event.

Cooperative Extension Dinner April 11

SPRINGFIELD (Delaware Co) – All interested residents of Delaware County are invited to the Delaware County Cooperative Extension Association, Inc. annual meeting and dinner April 11 at 6 p.m. at the Towne House Restaurant, Media.

The annual meeting and guest speaker will follow a dinner of stuffed chicken breast or penne pasta with fresh vegetables and marinare sauce. Dinner is $17 per person and tickets must be reserved by April 1. The meeting and speaker are free of charge. Call the office at (610) 690-2655 for more information.

Guest speaker will be Judith A. Stang, who is described as an individual who... "takes the road less traveled. First, it makes life interesting and second, you grow!" Join us as she shares an inspiring examination of personal and community leadership, and a challenge to leaders in Delaware County.

Cooperative Extension serves interested residents of the county through educational programs on health and nutrition, commercial horticulture, home horticulture, and youth programs which include 4-H Clubs and curriculum enrichment for classrooms.

USDA Protects 36 New Plant Varieties

WASHINGTON, D.C. – The USDA has issued certificates of protection to developers of 36 new varieties of seed-reproduced plants. They include barley, bluegrass, fescue, lettuce, pea, perennial ryegrass, pinto bean, potato, soybean, and wheat.

The 36 certificates are being issued under the amended Plant Variety Protection Act. The amendments extend protection to F1 hybrids and tuber-propagated varieties and require that all protected varieties be sold by variety name. The certificates require not only that the varieties be new, uniform, and stable, as in the original act, but also that they be distinct. The owners will have the exclusive right to reproduce, sell, import, and export their products in the United States for 20 years.

•Nebula variety of barley, developed by Western Plant Breeders, Bozeman, Mont.

•Prowashonupana variety of barley, developed by Research and Development Institute, Inc., Bozeman, Mont.

•Hatton variety of bean, developed by NDSU Research Foundation, Agricultural Experiment Station, Fargo, N.D.

•Seabreeze, Virtue, and Coronado varieties of fescue, developed by Pure-Seed Testing, Inc., Hubbard, Ore.

•Yorktown III variety of perennial ryegrass, developed by Lofts Seed, Inc., Lebanon, Ore.;

•Belzer, Maier, and Mountrail varieties of wheat, developed by NDSU Research Foundation, Fargo, N.D.

•Cordoba, Red Line, and Venice varieties of lettuce, developed by Seminis Vegetable Seeds, Inc., Woodland, Calif.

•Camarillo variety of fescue, developed by Williamette Valley Plant Breeders, Inc., Brownsville, Ore.

•Carrera variety of pea, developed by Cebeco Zaden B.V., Holland, The Netherlands

•Omni variety of perennial ryegrass, developed by Seed Research or Oregon, Inc., Corvallis, Ore.

•Conan, Sharpshooter, and Morgan varieties of wheat, developed by Pickseed West, Inc., Tangent, Ore.

•Accomac variety of soybean, developed by Virginia Tech Intellectual Properties, Inc., Blacksburg, Va.

•Ernie variety of wheat, developed by The Curators of the University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo.

•Ivan variety of wheat, developed by HybriTech Seed International, a unit of the Monsanto Company, Wichita, Kan.

•25W60 variety of wheat, developed by Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., Windfall, Ind.

USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service administers the plant variety protection program, which provides marketing protection to developers of new and distinct seed-reproduced and tuber-propagated plants ranging from farm crops to flowers.

Glickman Names Members To Plant Variety Protection Board

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman has named 14 members to the Plant Variety Protection Board. The two-year term of the previous 14-member board had expired. Eleven new members were named and three were reappointed.

The board is mandated by section 7 of the Plant Variety Protection Act (PVPA) to advise the secretary on the adoption of new rules and regulations, make advisory decisions on appeals from applicants, and advise on declaring a protected variety open to public use in emergencies. The board includes farmers, representatives of the seed industry, public and private plant breeders, and representatives of seed regulatory agencies.

The new members include Ernest Bradley, farmer, Lexa, Ark.; Peter Bretting, Agricultural Research Service, USDA, Beltsville, Md.; Leticia Cabrera, University of Texas, Brownsville, Texas; Bruce Hunter, Novartis Seeds, Ontario, Canada; Victor Miller, farmer, Oelwein, Iowa; Salomon Montano, farmer, Bosque, N.M; Bruce Morrissey, Dupont de Nemours, Wilmington, Del.; Jodie Smith, Fort Peck Community College, Poplar, Mont.; Daryl Strouts, Association of Official Seed Certifying Agencies, Manhattan, Kan.; and Gary Whitaker, Sakata Seed America, Morgan Hill, Calif.

The reappointed members include Virginia Lehman, Turfgrass Breeders' Association, Lebanon, Ore.; Margaret Smith, Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y.; and Dean Urmston, American Seed Trade Association, Washington, D.C.

HEAR WHAT SOME OF OUR CUSTOMERS SAY ABOUT THE NITRO

"Smooth boom suspension coupled with unmatched turning radius and high crop clearance makes a machine that is super productive even in mature crops."
Bob Galetta
Atlantic Blueberry Farms, Hammonton, NJ

"The Nitro is a super machine and is backed by a super dealer. Messick's parts & service is first class!"
Robert Burchett
Maple Spring Farms, Airville, PA

"A-1 machine! Front-mount boom gives exceptional visibility, and makes for fast, efficient spraying. The Nitro makes spraying fun!"
Jim Miller
Kreider Farms, Manheim, PA

"Great Boom ride & visibility! Also doubles as a floater... we put 75GPA on at over 5 MPH

SE8 In Stock

The Rhino® SE8 is an economical rotary mower designed to help maintain larger acreages of grass, weeds, stalks, or material up to 1" in diameter.

The streamlined, close-coupled design allows economical operation on tractors as small as 30 horsepower on the SE8 and 45 horsepower on the SE10 The 85 HP center gearbox and 60 HP outboard gearboxes are protected from sudden shockloads by a slip clutch on the main driveline and torque dampeners on the side driveshafts. Pan blade carriers help the unit glide over field obstacles and updraft blades with a 4" blade overlap provide a clean cut

LIGHT-FOOTED STRENGTH

There's only one answer: the 120 from Kramer.

The 120 is the ideal loader for work in landscaping, on confined construction sites, in factories, on farms and in multi-story buildings.

The four-wheel steering turns the wheels without scraping the ground. This design principle reduces tire wear and has minimal impact on the ground, whether subgrade, paving, concrete or asphalt.

The 120 has a cabin like its "big brothers." Wide doors allow safe, comfortable access. The spacious work environment provides excellent headroom. And a steering wheel controls the steering the same as the larger models.

NOTHING COMPARES TO OUR DISCS

The Krause 3948 disc is built tough to work hard and last long in the rocks. A folding disc with an 18' 1" cut and a road width of only 11' 6", the Krause 3948 is the leader when it comes to preparing a level seedbed in all types of soils and field conditions. Like all Krause discs, the performance of the 3948 begins with the innovative Krause Rockflex bearing arms that protect against rocks. Heavy-duty ductile iron spools hold up in extreme conditions and the staggered gangs on the 3948 cut out the center. The Flex-Wing fold results in a uniform cut and finish. Best of all, you get a Krause 3948 disc backed by Hoober's unmatched service and parts support. And no other disc can beat Krause when it comes to resale value.

THE 624 MOST RELIABLE HORSES AT PHILADELPHIA PARK

When it comes to horses you can count on at Philadelphia Park, the horses found in the Case-IH Magnum and Maxxum tractors are certainly the most reliable ones.

CASE III Up Time All the time™

That's because Philadelphia Park relies on Case-IH Magnum and Case-IH Maxxum tractors from Hoober, Inc. to help keep the track in perfect shape, even during the winter.

"We run our tractors 24 hours a day, seven days a week from Thanksgiving until mid to late-March," says Philadelphia Park Track Superintendent Roy Smith. "We've been with Hoober since around 1989 and we've been real happy with them."

Just how reliable have Case-IH tractors from Hoober been for Philadelphia Park? One of the track's two 7110 Magnums has logged 20,700 hours with no major problems, while the other Magnum is still going strong after 18,000 hours of service. With performance like that, it's not hard to see why the track recently purchased a new Case-IH MX 120 from Hoober.

For Philadelphia Park, there's something just as important as the reliability of the Case-IH Magnums and Maxxums, and that's service after the sale.

"We do most of the servicing on the tractors here, but if there's something I can't handle, I call Hoober," says Tom Dasher, Head Mechanic at Philadelphia Park. "Their response time is excellent and it's because of their service we've been with them so long. They make an effort to please the customer... they really do. They're outstanding."

Track Star

The Bobcat® 864 G-Series Compact Track Loader

Rugged rubber tracks deliver extra traction and greatly reduced ground pressure – as low as 3.8 PSI with wide tracks – and less ground disturbance. You get superior flotation for working on soft, wet, even muddy ground where other machines stop dead.

New!* G-Series engineering sets the standard for operator-friendly performance!

- Excellent visibility to sides, front, and rear corners.
- Roomy comfort for operators of all sizes.
- Fully-adjustable suspension seat.
- Rear-pivot seat bar.
- State-of-the-art instrumentation.

FIELDSTAR READY

MF CONVENTIONAL AND ROTARY COMBINES

Massey Ferguson Combines are legendary for their productivity and reliability. They still are.

Today's MF 8680, with its 62" wide high-inertia cylinder and unique cleaning system is the most advanced and production conventional design you can buy.

In addition, the MF 8780 Rotary redefines efficiency, sample quality, and reliability with the largest rotor, and simplest combine design in its class.

GET PRECISE APPLICATION CONTROL

New Holland side-delivery spreaders provide the most material control. Whether you're light top dressing, laying down a heavy layer, or anything in between, the Model 3110 puts the right amount of material right where you need it.

- Handles a wide variety of material – slurry, gutter material, cow manure, even poultry litter.
- V-tank design delivers material to the auger fast.
- Heavy-duty round-core auger produces less drag.
- Double-acting hydraulic cylinder moves auger up and down to keep material flowing.
- Hydraulic gate and specially designed expeller give precise application control.
- Backed by a 10-year warranty against tank rust-through.

See us for all your spreader needs.
New Holland Box Spreaders also in stock.

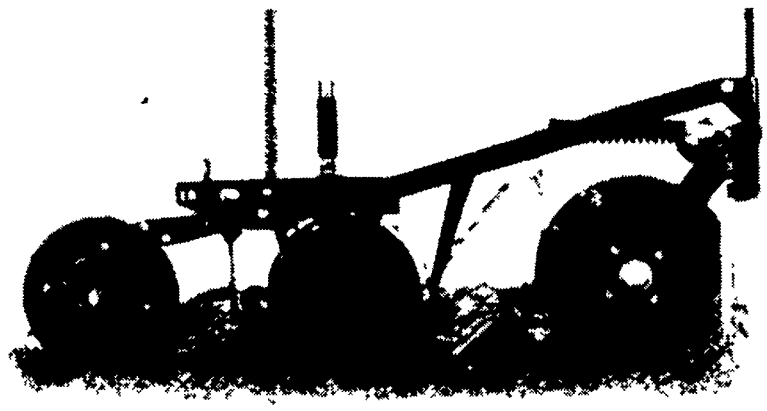
ALL THE FEATURES... IN A COMPACT SIZE.

Introducing Great Plains no-till excellence in a 12' model.



- Utilizes proven coulter/opener no-till system
- New 12' size provides maximum productivity.
- Accurate planting in demanding no-till conditions.
- T-handle depth control system ensures accurate seed placement
- Opener and coulter stagger of 10 3/4" allows trash to flow evenly and freely
- Creates a mini-seedbed with no-till coulters
- Fluted seed cups and 4-speed gearbox provide accuracy in varying rates and seed sizes.

Great Plains

We lead because we listen.

The proven Great Plains no-till system utilizes a coulter to prepare a mini-conventional seedbed for the openers to place the seed ... at the precise depth selected.

Mid-Atlantic Agri Systems Wins Honor

SEATTLE, Wash. — At the annual meeting of J. Houle and Sons, manufacturers of liquid manure equipment, Mid-Atlantic Agri Systems, Quarryville, Pa., received the top volume dealer award for North America.

Shown presenting the award for high scales to Scott Bristou of Mid-Atlantic is Michel Houle, president of J. Houle and Sons.

Houle maintains a network of more than 150 dealers in Canada and the U.S. J. Houle and Sons manufacturers equipment at its Quebec, Canada, plant.

Pennfield Feed Mill Project On Schedule

SOUTH MONTROSE (Susquehanna Co.)–Construction is on schedule in the expansion project of the Pennfield Corporation's new livestock feed manufacturing plant near here.

"All of the main systems for pelleting, crimping, and mixing are in place," said Bob Buehler, Pennfield Feeds senior vice president, ag products division. "We are now installing the support systems and will begin testing of the electrical and other components."

Buehler also said that the boiler room is almost complete and that construction of the warehouse is proceeding well.

He noted that Pennfield hopes to have the new plant in operation by late spring, but cautioned that no livestock feeds would be distributed to area farmers until extensive testing of feeds could be completed.

"Today's livestock feeds must be produced according to exacting formulas and, at Pennfield, we will not sell the first ton of feed produced at South Montrose until we are absolutely sure we can produce livestock feeds that meet our superior quality nutritional standards," Buehler said.

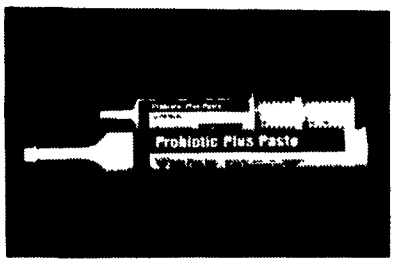
Pennfield Corporation broke ground for this $6 million project in April 1999. The plant will produce mainly dairy feeds. There are more than 287,000 dairy cows in the new plant's marketing area of northern Pennsylvania and southern New York. Sales are projected to be $8 million for the first full year of operation.

Aid Fights Stress

KNAPP, Wis. – Vets Plus, Inc. presents Probiotic Plus Paste™, an aid for all types of stress.

Probiotic Plus Paste™ is designed to increase the good bacteria in the animal's gastrointestinal tract and stimulate appetite, which may be suppressed due to the introduction of stress. Such stress would include, but is not limited to shipping, adverse weather conditions, overcrowding, parturition, weaning, antibiotic treatments or ration changes.

Probiotic Plus Paste ™ contains Lactobacillus acidophilus DDS-1 and six other naturally occurring microorganisms, antioxidant vitamins, chelated minerals, as well as other essential elements needed to ensure adequate nutrition. It is an exceptional product with outstanding results.



Probiotic Plus Paste™, is designed to increase the good bacteria in the animal's gastrointestinal tract and stimulate appetite, which may be suppressed due to the introduction of stress.

Probiotic Plus Paste™ is available in both 300 cc and 80 cc tubes. Vets Plus is proud to say that Probiotic Plus Paste™ is all natural and causes no withholding.

Novartis Seeds Releases Five New Soybean Varieties

GOLDEN VALLEY, Minn.–Novartis Seeds, Inc.-field crops is bringing soybean farmers five new NK® Brand soybean varieties in time for 2000 planting.

Each of the varieties, which range in maturity from Mid-Group 0 to Mid-Group II, includes the popular Roundup Ready® gene, and all combine high yields with strong disease-resistance packages.

Based on excellent performance in company field trials, Novartis Seeds fast-tracked the release of these varieties, providing farmers with earlier access to the improved soybean lines. However, despite the early release, Novartis Seeds' Mark Schmidt says that a good quantity of each of the varieties is available.

The five new varieties are the latest products from Novartis Seeds soybean research program–an effort that spans 30 years and has produced more than 247 improved varieties. Like their predecessors, Novartis Seeds anticipates strong demand for the new offerings.

"These varieties share the three characteristics our customers consistently request: top yield potential, Roundup Ready herbicide tolerance and comprehensive disease protection," said Schmidt, the company's soybean product manager. "Even in challenging growing environments like cool, no-till soils, these varieties have demonstrated their ability to perform."

Key characteristics for the new NK Brand Roundup Ready soybeans include:

• Variety S04-E1, Mid-Group 0. This variety is widely adapted to northern fields and high pH soils, with very good tolerance to iron deficiency chlorosis in first-year trials. In addition, it resists Phytophthora root rot with both Rps1-c gene and moderate field resistance, and includes moderate resistance to Sclerotinia white mold.

• Variety S09-Y9, Late-Group 0. Excellent emergence makes this soybean a good choice for early planting, even in cooler soils. It provides moderate resistance to Sclerotinia white mold, and resists Phytophthora root rot (Rps1-C gene, plus moderate field resistance.)

• Variety Number: S23-03, Early to Mid-Group II. This variety combines strong stress tolerance with a comprehensive disease package, making it a good choice for tough environments such as no-till drilling. It has moderate resistance to Sclerotinia white mold and brown stem rot, and resistance to Phytophthora root rot (Rps1-c gene).

• Variety Number: S24-K4, Mid-Group II. Superior stress tolerance helps this variety give very high yields, even in drier, more variable growing conditions. It features Rps1-a gene for resistance to Phytophthora root rot.

• Variety S30-P6, Mid-Group II. This variety provides the most complete protection against Phytophthora root rot with Rps1-k gene. It also resists brown stem rot and includes moderate resistance to SDS.

ARA Releases E-Commerce, Product Stewardship White Paper

ST. LOUIS, Mo. – With the advent of e-commerce as an increasingly common manner of conducting business, the Agricultural Retailers Association (ARA) has produced a policy position paper for ag retailer members on e-commerce and product stewardship.

"Today's ag retailers doing business via e-commerce, either directly or indirectly, face an increasingly wide and new range of product stewardship questions and issues. The White Paper is designed to help ag retailers effectively work with this relatively new form of business," said Paul Kindinger, president and CEO of the Agricultural Retailers Association.

"E-commerce has been a growing concern with ag retailers. They are particularly concerned about the stewardship of the products that are bought and sold through this new trade channel. ARA is concerned that such products are still handled and applied in a manner that meets all federal and state regulatory requirements," Kindinger said. "For example, California has introduced legislation to study Internet sales of agricultural crop protection products to evaluate the potential impact of such products that are not labeled or registered for use in the state."

Misapplied or mishandled products could result in damage to crops or cause environmental hazards that will prompt state and federal agencies to consider tighter use or application restrictions. In addition, retailers may be reluctant to custom apply crop protection products that they did not sell because of uncertainty about whether the product was properly labeled or was in the proper container.

Furthermore, concerns exist regarding whether products are shipped with required label rates, material data sheets, application restrictions, and other regulatory requirements. In reviewing several e-commerce sites, however, there appears to be numerous safeguards in place relating to the purchase or sale of such crop protection products.

Included among the safeguards are that users of the sites must provide a dealer/distributor license number, commercial applicator license number, and specific state licensing. Furthermore, the e-commerce site must validate licensing information with the state licensing agencies.

More information concerning the safe stewardship of various ag .related products, including crop protection products and services, can be found in the White Paper. Members who would like additional copies or more information should contact ARA at (800) 844-4900.

Pathogen Not Resistant

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. – According to a scientific review given at the annual American Association of Swine Practitioners meeting, pork producers may have one less thing to worry about when it comes to herd health– antibiotic resistance by Lawsonia intracellularis, the bacterium that causes ileitis.

This is big news because researchers have found L. intracellularis present in 96.2 percent of all herds. Researchers calculate the financial impact from actual cases of ileitis to be as high as $1.7 billion, or $22.19 per pig in the United States, even when using a more modest 86-percent infection rate.

Dr. Steven McOrist, an internationally known veterinary pathologist from Australia, presented research results from studies that searched for antibiotic resistance in the widespread pathogen. He said, "Bacteria such as L. intracellularis don't possess some of the critical cell components needed to allow resistance to occur. In addition, numerous studies continue to show this particular bacterium is still as susceptible as ever to antibiotics such as tylosin."

Despite scientific evidence to the contrary, some producers and veterinarians may assume they've seen pigs exhibit antibiotic resistance to products such as Tylan®. McOrist explained, "This may be due to misdiagnosis because of a similarity between the characteristics of ileitis and other diseases, inadequate dosing, or pigs simply not eating enough medicated feed for efficacy."

Producers and veterinarians concerned about antibiotic effectiveness and long-term viability may take comfort in McOrist's conclusion: "The findings of this study underscore the importance of challenging assumptions about antimicrobial resistance. By understanding the uniqueness of bacterial organisms and how they interact with antibiotics, pork producers can continue to use approved products in a prudent and effective manner."

As McOrist explained to those attending the meeting, continuous exposure of L. intracellularis to products such as Tylan has yielded no evidence of antibiotic resistance. Because of this reality, the product's effectiveness has not diminished and veterinarians still recommend it for the prevention and control of ileitis.

Tylan Premix is the only product approved in the United States for the prevention and control of ileitis.

Corn Growers To Host Workshop On Biotechnology, GMO Crops

TULSA, Okla. – As part of its Farmer Choice-Customer First Program, the American Corn Growers Association will host the first of a series of workshops on the issues of biotechnology and genetically modified crops.

The workshop will be April 8 at the Airport Ramada Inn in Spokane, Wash. beginning at 8:30 a.m.

"The entire debate over GMOs has caused a great deal of uncertainty for America's farmers. This workshop will try to address some of the issues surrounding the controversy and provide agricultural producers with an opportunity to receive some answers to their many questions," said Gary Goldberg, chief executive officer of the American Corn Growers Association (ACGA).

The program consists of some of the most outstanding players in the field of GMOs. Dan McGuire, program director of the ACGA, will give a comprehensive explanation of the Farmer Choice-Customer First program and what its objectives are and how it affects U.S. exports. McGuire has extensive experience in the grain export field, having served as past executive director of the Nebraska Wheat Commission and executive director of the Interstate Grain Compact Marketing Commission.

Also on the program is Mark Hegg, the National Farmers Organization national director from the state of Washington to discuss marketing opportunities for non-GMO crops, Chrys Ostrander, president of Spokane Tilth, will discuss the ramifications of GMOs on organic farmers and the new USDA guidelines for organic products. Fuji Seyama, department manager, feed grain department for the Marubeni America Corporation, will discuss Asian requirements for delivery of GMO and non-GMO grain.

Also invited are Dr. Susan Wuerthele, regional toxicologist for the Environmental Protection Agency, to share her knowledge of the scientific affects of GMOs, and John Oades, director, U.S. Wheat Associates, to address overseas export markets for wheat.

USDA Sets Meetings On Organic Production

WASHINGTON, D.C. – The USDA will convene three public meetings to discuss the production and handling of aquatic animals to be labeled as "organic."

Meetings will be April 10 at the Mobile Convention Center in Mobile, Ala; April 12 at the Anchorage Hilton in Anchorage, Alaska; and May 3 at the Providence Biltmore in Providence, R.I. Public comments on this issue are also requested.

"We are conducting these meetings as an outgrowth of our new proposal for uniform and consistent national standards for organic food. The meetings will help us gather input to develop acquatic standards," said Kathleen Merrigan, administrator of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service.

The Organic Foods Production Act of 1990 was designed to establish national standards governing the marketing of certain agricultural products as organically produced products, assure consumers that organically produced products meet a consistent standard, and facilitate commerce in fresh and processed food that is organically produced. AMS' National Organic Program was created to implement the provisions of the act.

Federal entities that share regulatory authority over the production and marketing of aquatic animals include the National Marine Fisheries Service of the Department of Commerce, the Fish and Wildlife Service of the Department of the Interior, the Food and Drug Administration of the Department of Health and Human Services, and the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service of USDA. AMS will consult with these agencies in developing its organic standards.

To attend one of the public meetings and provide oral comments, individuals should register with AMS before the meeting date by calling the National Organic Program at (202) 720-3252 or by sending an e-mail message to nop.register@usda.gov. Written comments may be sent to Mark Keating, USDA-AMS-TMP-NOP, Room 2510-S, P.O. Box 96456, Washington, D.C. 20090-6456. Comments may be submitted by e-mail to aquatic.comment@usda.gov. For more information, call Mark Keating at (202) 720-3252.

Dairy Of Distinction Seeks Nice Looking Farms

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Do you take pride in maintaining your dairy farm? Does your farm project an attractive, wholesome image to consumers? If so, the Dairy of Distinction Program of Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, and Vermont is looking for you.

The Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program that oversees the Distinction program was first started in 1983 in Pennsylvania. The Dairy of Distinction recognize the hard work and dedication of the farmers who maintain attractive farms.

The purpose of the program is to instill a greater sense of confidence in the wholesomeness of dairy products, thus increasing sales.

Farms that apply are judged on the roadside appearance of building, grounds, and surroundings, since this is what our dairy product consumers observe as they drive by the farm.

The cleanliness of the barnyard, feed areas, and manure management are all areas taken into consideration when a team of judges takes a look at your farm from the road. Your milk cooperative or handler will be contacted to approve your milk quality.

Judging is conducted during the month of May. Award winners are announced during local June Dairy Month activities. To qualify for consideration, you must be actively dairy farming and shipping milk.

Del-Jame Farm near Hamburg in Berks County is a 1999 Dairy of Distinction winner. Since the program began in 1987 in Pennsylvania, more than 700 farms have been given this farm beautification award. Entries are now being received for the year 2000 program. Take time to enter your farm now.

Applications are available for Pennsylvania dairy farms from Michael O'Conner, 324 Henning Building, Dept. of Dairy and Animal Science, Penn State University, University Park, PA 16802. Phone: (814) 863-3913.

New York State applications are available from Carol Keene-Ainsille, 3993 Jordonville Road, Jordonville, NY 13361. Phone: (315) 858-2770.

For New Jersey applications, contact Joy Ricker, 91 Beemer Road, Sussex, NJ 07461. Phone: (973) 875-4803.

For Vermont applications, send to Elisa Clancy, Vermont Department of Agriculture, 16 State Street, Drawer 20, Montpelier, VT 05620-2901. Phone: (802) 828-3835.

All applications must be completed and returned to your respective state secretary by April 15, 2000.

The Dairy of Distinction program is financed in Pennsylvania by dairy farmers through the American Dairy Association & Dairy Council Mid East and the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program in cooperation with many local agribusiness organizations. The program is conducted with advice and help from the Penn State Cooperative Extension.

HOW IS YOUR FARM SCORED?

Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program Inc.

Awards will be based upon neatness, good maintenance, and other factors that can be controlled by the farmer. Attractive background scenery should not be weighted heavily in judging. All judging observations should be made from a vehicle at one or more points on an adjacent public highway. If the farm is off the road, the judging will take place from the nearest lane. Judging should give equal consideration to old wood construction and new construction of metal or concrete block.

The award program may be used for subsequent advertising or promotion activities for dairy products or dairy farming. Farmers who apply for the award agree that if selected they will cooperate with these promotion activities and make all reasonable efforts to maintain both the exterior and interior of heir properties in an acceptable manner.

HOW THE APPLICATION WORKS

The owner or operator of the dairy farm should sign the application and send it to the Dairy of Distinction state secretary by April 15.

HOW THE JUDGING WORKS

Judging teams will visit farms during the month of May. Farms will be judged each year as the award is presented on an annual basis. Any dairy failing to maintain appearance standards will be asked to remove their signs. The Dairy of Distinction signs remain the property of the committee, not the property of the dairy farmer. All farms must achieve a compliance score of 90 percent on their Dairy of Distinction score card. Your cooperative or milk handler will be contacted to approve your milk quality.

RULES FOR THE DAIRY OF DISTINCTION AWARD

1) The Dairy of Distinction sign remains property of the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Committee.
2) The post and bracket shall be supplied by and maintained by the dairy farmer. It is suggested that a wood post 4' x 4' x 12' or iron pipe 2' x 12' can be used. Posts or pipe should be installed and maintained in true vertical position with 8' above ground. Top of the bracket should be lower than six inches from the top of the post.
3) Signs shall be displayed in front of the dairy at roadside. An attractive post or bracket, or other frame, shall be used to display the sign. No more than three signs should be displayed from the sign frame or post, and all shall be of a style, general size, and quality comparable to the Dairy of Distinction sign. Sign should be secured on all sides to avoid wind damages.
4) Signs shall not be moved to other premises. New owners of a Dairy of Distinction farm must apply to retain the sign
5) Replacement of damaged signs is at the committee's discretion.
6) No producer shall be charged with scoring or sign expenses.
7) Judges' decisions will be final.
8) Judging will take place between May 1st and May 31st.
9) Farms awarded a Dairy of Distinction sign in previous years will be judged between April 1st and April 30th. If they do not qualify, they will be rejudged between May 1st and May 31st so they have the opportunity to keep the sign.
10) Farms that do not requalify will return the sign to their regional Dairy of Distinction committee.

Dairy of Distinction
2000 Pennsylvania Application

PURPOSE OF PROGRAM

Attractive dairy farms give the consumer greater confidence in the wholesomeness of milk and stimulate milk sales which encourages public support for the dairy industry The award gives recognition to the dairy farmer for maintaining a well-kept farmstead

ELIGIBILITY

All Northeast dairy farms producing milk for sale are invited to submit an application for the award Dairies receiving the 10 highest scores in each of the 21 districts will receive an 18" x 24" Dairy of Distinction sign to be displayed in front of their farm

Acting Bigger Could Benefit Ohio Beef Producers

COLUMBUS, Ohio beef producers who want to remain profitable without increasing the size of their herds could try acting bigger, said Jeff McCutcheon, agriculture and natural resources agent at the Perry County office of Ohio State University Extension.

By working together and agreeing to follow similar management practices, beef producers located near each other could cut production costs by buying supplies in bulk and increase prices received by selling larger combined loads of uniform calves, McCutcheon said.

Several groups of Ohio farmers are trying to do just that, including the Ohio Pro-Beef Alliance formed in February. McCutcheon points to a group in Virginia – the Buckingham County Cattlemen's Association – as an example of what Ohio's groups might achieve.

"The group's average cowherd size is about 30 head, and many members are only part-time operators," McCutcheon said. "By the early 1990's, several members were faced with the decision of getting bigger or getting out of cattle. The group decided its biggest asset was volume buying power."

They began to co-purchase mineral supplements, vaccinations, ultrasound pregnancy checks and a breeding package in bulk, which dropped their individual costs, he said.

"For example, the group began to buy 74 tons of mineral supplements at $12 a bag when they started several years ago, and today they're up to 180 tons at $6 a bag," McCutcheon said.

Four years age, the Virginia group began marketing its calves in combined trailer loads of 50,000 pounds, a weight that optimizes transportation costs and is preferred by most markets, he said. Each load of calves fits within a 150 pound weight range, is quality assured and graded by a Virginia Department of Agriculture livestock grader, and has similar health and genetics.

"Like most feeder calf producers, they used to haul their cattle to the local livestock market, have them sorted by weight, grade and color, and sell them for whatever price they could get," McCutcheon said. "The group now commingles loads of feed calves and sells by tele-auction. If they had stayed independent with a 30-cow herd average, none of them could have filled a 50,000-pound trailer load with feeder calves."

The group has reaped about $50 per head premium on 500-pound to 599-pound steers by using this marketing method, he said.

"If Ohio producers can agree on similar management practices, breeding packages and suppliers while avoiding personality conflicts, they could experience similar success by acting bigger," McCutcheon said.

Many of Ohio's beef producers are in a similar situation as the Virginia producers. About 95 percent of Ohio's 17,000 beef operations have fewer than 50 cows and, working alone, cannot buy in bulk or fill a uniform, 50,000-pound trailer load, he said.

Twenty producers from Pickaway, Ross, Hocking, Scioto, Pike and Highland counties are members of the Ohio Pro-Beef Alliance, and other similar groups are forming in Wood and Carroll counties.

We're in a membership mode right now, trying to get more producers to participate," said Mike Estadt, agriculture and natural resources agent at the Pickaway County office of Ohio State University Extension who helped create the Ohio Pro-Beef Alliance. "We've got about, 1000 cows, but we'd like to see 3,000 in the alliance."

The group already has organized a mineral purchase and plans to but seed, medications and other inputs in bulk to take advantage of economies of scale, Estadt said.

"The input savings are there, but the real benefit should be in the marketing of 50,000-pound lots of calves with similar, known genetics, a small weight range, and the same vaccinations and weaning procedures," he said. "We expect that calves marketed through the alliance will be worth more than calves going through the weekly sales."

It is hard to say what the financial benefits of group marketing could be, but a similar program in Iowa has earned about $15 to $25 more per head, Estadt said.

By combining their resources, the members of the Ohio Pro-Beef Alliance also hope to improve herd genetics through artificial insemination and the use of top performing bulls, and use the latest technologies for record keeping and performance and carcass data collection.

For more information about the Ohio beef groups forming to explore the advantages of acting bigger, contact Estadt at (740) 474-7534, Ray Wells at the Ross County Extension office at (740) 702-3200, Dan Frobose at the Wood County Extension office at (419) 354-9050, or Mike Hogan at the Carroll County Extension office at (330) 627- 4310.

Collaboration Leads To Good Return On Investment For Consumers, Poultry Industry

NEWARK, Del. – A financial partnership of the University of Delaware, government, industry and private benefactors has made UD's College of Agriculture and Natural Resources home to one of the world's premier facilities for poultry disease research.

The $8.5 million Charles C. Allen Jr. Biotechnology Laboratory, opened in 1997, allows university researchers to address issues critical to the Delmarva economy.

"Researchers can focus their efforts on diseases common to Delmarva," said Dr. John Nye, dean of the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources, who began working on funding for the lab soon after he arrived in 1991. "The results of the research has lead to benefits for poultry farmers and consumers alike."

"We were already responsive to the industry," said Dr. John Rosenberger, professor and chair of the department of animal and food sciences, citing the ongoing disease control research that allowed local producers to become and remain competitive in the U.S. and the world. "Having the Allen Lab lets us react quickly to any disease threat, exotic or otherwise. With the increased amount of space, we can attract more interest in our programs, which can lead to more government funding. We couldn't have worked with our industry partners as extensively without the lab. The industry has ownership and feels that they do."

Nye and Rosenberger together built the case for government and industry funding. Rosenberger developed the preliminary plan and Nye worked on obtaining federal funding with Sen. Joseph Biden, who made a personal commitment to building the facility. The state of Delaware responded as well, and Nye enlisted the aid of Charles C. (Chick) Allen III of Allen Family Foods

Allen was pleased to make the case for support to his colleagues in the poultry industry. "The university has a lot to offer the industry," he said. "There's a lot of talent there and we can only benefit from supporting the lab. It's a win-win situation."

According to Rosenberger, the department's poultry disease research program has experienced measurable success in dollar return for the Delmarva poultry industry. A vaccine for infectious bursal disease developed by researchers increased livability by 1.6 percent and decreased disease related condemnations by .075 percent, creating an estimated savings in excess of $40 million per annum for the industry. But the benefits go beyond dollar savings and industry gains.

"The research could have impact beyound agriculture," said Rosenberger. "For instance, Dr. Robin Morgan is doing research on the evolution of the herpes virus which appears to lead to cancer in chickens."

Morgan, assistant department chair, food and animal sciences, has received some funding from the American Cancer Society for her research, which has potential uses in the fight against cancer in humans.

Nye said, "We can reduce consumer concerns about diseases in chickens and relate the knowledge to diseases in humans. But our research also leads to lower production costs, making chicken the most economical source of animal protein. Both factors lead to increased consumption of chicken."

And that, he continues, means a double benefit to the Delmarva area.

"We're proud that the fundraising for the Allen Lab is a strong example of what private and public funding can do," said Nye. "Support from federal and state governments, industry and individuals investing in the university means a strong return for the entire Delmarva community."

Food Aid May Be Option For Cutting Crop Supplies

COLUMBUS, Ohio – Low prices down on the farm may prompt the U.S. government to be more generous with food aid programs abroad in order to reduce huge crop surpluses, said an Ohio State University agricultural economist.

Allen Lines based his comments on a March 10 supply-and-demand report in which the U.S. Department of Agriculture slightly lowered the soybean carryout, or projected stocks at the end of the crop marketing year, by 20 million bushels from the estimate given in the February report, a drop to 325 million bushels from 345 million bushels.

Increased soybean exports accounted for the entire lowered carryout, Lines said. However, the report didn't include this year's total food aid projections due to incomplete information on shipping dates, he said. Consequently exports could be higher, and the government might continue to use its arsenal of food aid programs to help get rid of the crop.

Food aid would affect soybean and wheat supplies, and would take the form of low-interest loans or else outright grants Lines said. Food aid would not involve any corn shipments

In the report, USDA projects soybean prices to be $4.50-$4.90 per bushel, about 5-10 cents per bushel less than projected last month, and below the 1999 average price of $4.93 per bushel.

Corn and wheat price projections were also below last year's average price. USDA projects corn prices to be $1.85-1.90 per bushel, compared to the 1999 average of $1.94 per bushel. Wheat prices are projected at $2.45-2.55 per bushel compared to last year's price of $2.65 per bushel.

The lackluster report doused any hopes of a rally in light of a recent up tick in prices, confirming that low crop prices are here to stay, Lines said. "What this report does is confirm a long-term downward trend that began back in January," Lines said.

"We can try as we will to break out of the low-price scenario, but it's going to be very difficult to do," Lines said.

Recent predictions for a Midwestern drought this summer may scare a response out of the market, Lines said. It might also prompt some "very sophisticated" foreign grain traders to lock in low prices before any anticipated crop scarcity raises prices, he said. "But this is all a big 'if,'" Lines said.

As for farmers, it's going to be an important year to use a diverse array of marketing tools to try to protect themselves from a price drop off and to ensure a reasonable bottom for their crop, Lines said.

Poultry Industry Hails Implementation Of China Trade Accord

WASHINGTON D.C. – U.S. poultry industry leaders hailed the news that China is implementing an agreement made last year to open its market to meat and poultry products from the United States.

"China is a land of enormous potential for American poultry producers," said John Bekkers, chairman of the National Chicken Council. "China's implementation of the agreement means sales for the industry and jobs for American workers."

Turkey producers echoed the sentiment. "The turkey industry is pleased with the Chinese government's decision to open this market to poultry products," said National Turkey Federation Chairman Jerry Jerome. "This will allow the turkey industry to provide an economical protein to feed the population and provide the industry an opportunity to grow its export market, creating a win-win situation for both the United States and China."

The Chinese inspection and quarantine service issued Tuesday a set of instructions on allowable imports of citrus, wheat, meat and poultry – the commodities covered by the 1999 Agreement on U.S.-China Agricultural Cooperation.

"The heart of a trade agreement is always in the fine print," said Jim Summer, president of the USA Poultry and Egg Export Council. "With the issuance of circulars, the Chinese are showing that they intend to live up to their agreement and allow our products in."

Sumner noted that China including Hong Kong is already the largest customer for U.S. poultry exports. In 1999, U.S. exporters shipped 735,137 metric tons of chicken, turkey, duck and related products to Hong Kong and China valued at $455 million. Although Hong Kong is the port of entry for most of the trade, an estimated 70 percent of the poultry arriving in Hong Kong is transshipped to the mainland.

Under the agreement signed last April, China will lower its tariff on poultry imports from 20 percent of value to 10 percent over four years. China will also recognize inspection by the USDA as equivalent to its own, eliminate license provisions that have prevented the sale of U.S. poultry at retail, and will forego a tariff-rate quota (TRQ) for poultry and red meat above a certain quantity. TRQs are used by some countries to limit imports from the United States even when tariffs are reduced.

The biggest advantage of the agreement, according to industry leaders, is that U.S. exporters will be able to ship directly to Chinese ports. Direct trade with ports other than Hong Kong has been limited by the lack of regulations that are now being supplied by the Chinese under the agreement.

"Progress in international trade agreements is difficult to achieve," said Bekkers, who is also president and chief operating office of Gold Kist Inc., the nation's second-largest chicken company. "So when great progress does occur, as in the U.S.-China bilateral trade pact, it is very noteworthy. Benefits of the agreement to U.S. poultry producer-processors will be extraordinarily significant. Thus, we are appreciative to all of the dedicated officials at the U.S. Trade Representative's Office and at the U.S. Department of Agriculture who worked so long and hard on our behalf."

Most of the poultry trade between the United States and China is in the form of chicken feet or wings, although the Chinese have begun to make larger purchases of leg quarters. China's imports of turkey products are mainly boneless and skinless thigh meat, turkey tails, and drumsticks. Further-processed poultry products such as smoked turkey drumsticks are popular in other Asian countries and could catch on in China, said Jerome, who is chief executive officer of the Turkey Store Company, a large Midwest producer of a variety of turkey products.

The agreement now being implemented is independent of China's bid to enter the World Trade Organization or the question of whether China is granted permanent normal trade relations (PNTR) with the United States.

"Our industry supports PNTR and accession of China to the WTO," Sumner said. "Freer trade in agricultural goods will benefit both the Chinese people and American agriculture.

Preview Classic July 1

HAMBURG, N.Y. – The Erie County Agricultural Society and Andolina Angus Farms present the Empire State Junior Preview Classic Saturday, July 1. This is the first time western New York will experience this type of show.

The event is designed for young adults 21 years and under the opportunity to show their heifers and steers at a preseason show for experience. There will be ribbons and prize money awarded.

It will give the youngsters the opportunity to see what they need to work on prior to the Erie County Fair. This type of show is very prominent in Ohio and Pennsylvania with the importance of agriculture in New York State, the Erie County Agricultural Society decided to expand efforts into the off-season to support and promote agriculture among youth.

There will be three sections with showmanship [steers and heifers] beginning at 10 a.m. This section showcases how well the animal and the exhibitor work together and defines how well the child has worked with his or her animal. At 12 p.m. heifers will show, followed with steers. Heifers will be shown by breed and age and steers will be shown by "hip height."

Awards will be presented after each section to champion showman, supreme champion heifer, reserve supreme champion heifer, grand champion steer, and reserve grand champion steer.

The Empire State Junior Preview Classic will be located in the livestock arena on the Hamburg Fairgrounds just 20 minutes outside of Buffalo.

For more information or an entry form, call Jessica Gominiak at (716) 649-3900 ext. 407. All entries must be postmarked no later than June 17 to qualify.

POULTRY GUARD™
LITTER AMENDMENT

New Poultry Guard™ Litter Amendment is a unique activated clay that delivers consistent ammonia control without the handling inconvenience associated with other poultry litter treatments

Unlike these other treatments, Poultry Guard Litter Amendment is easy and convenient to apply and needs no incorporation or activation Fewer application variables mean more consistent performance In addition, Poultry Guard can be applied up to five days before bird set, whenever it's convenient for the grower

Using Poultry Guard Litter Amendment Is As Simple As...

Apply
Simply spread over poultry litter.
- No incorporation
- No moisture activation
- No complicated instructions for heating and ventilation in conjunction with application

Bird Set
Poultry Guard can be applied when it's most convenient, up to five days before bird set.
- No application timing headaches between clean out and bird set
- No last minute application after equipment has been lowered

Control Ammonia
Poultry Guard will deliver immediate and long-term ammonia control and give birds a healthier growing environment.
- No more dangerously high levels of ammonia to stunt growth

You be the judge! We are confident this litter amendment will improve your poultry and your profits.

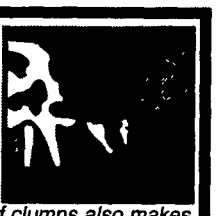
BARIDANA ORCHARDGRASS
Late maturing, very winter hardy. Excellent rust resistance.



Baridana makes a nice dense sward without the typical Orchardgrass 'clumps' The absence of clumps also makes Baridana a perfect Orchardgrass for pastures. Baridana has shown real high digestibility and protein figures on forage samples If managed well, it can produce over 7 tons of DM per acre

OPTIONS IN FEEDING
Your Dairy Herd
Call us today for a feeding program built to fit your Dairy Herd and your Production Goals.

For maximum performance and income over feed cost, rations should be balanced to provide the optimum levels of degradable and undegradable protein, nonstructural and structural (fiber) carbohydrate as well as minerals and vitamins. This allows for maximum utilization of the rumen microbes and total ration efficiency. Because you needs may be different from your neighbor's, we adjust the following nutrients and ingredients to fit your needs and goals

- Amino Acids
- Protein
- By-Pass Protein
- Energy
- Fiber
- Calcium
- Phosphorus
- Salt
- Vitamins & Trace Minerals
- Organic Trace Minerals
- Multi-Protein Sources

SWEETCAKE 16NU

FEED SUPPLEMENT BLOCKS FOR THE LIVESTOCK INDUSTRY

• High Natural Protein • No Urea • Fat Enhanced
• Balanced Supplementation • Safe For All Livestock Classes

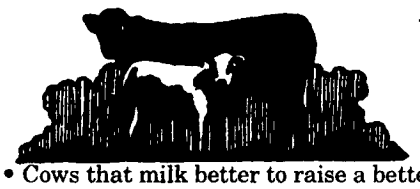
Sweetcake Advantages

- Aids in making the best use of your available forage
- Promotes a more even herd consumption, with 24-hour availability to all cattle
- Reduces labor to save you money and give you more time to make important management decisions
- Supplies much-needed vitamins and minerals that forage lacks to help your cattle perform to their genetic potential
- Supplies fat in most formulations to enhance energy intake

For Dairy

- Replacement heifers that grow out soundly and economically
- Body condition on dry cows so they can return to lactation, producing at the maximum potential
- Healthier herds, with essential trace minerals that help prevent metritis, retained placenta and other health problems
- Prompt re-breeding, thanks to essential nutrients

For Beef



- Stronger, healthier calves at birth
- Heavier Calves at weaning
- Cows that cycle better for improved conception rates
- Cows that milk better to raise a better calf

- AVAILABLE IN 200 LB. SIZE -

These 2 farms need to be sold now. Poultry & veal in Schuylkill Co. with excellent income track record. Nice house, plus other features. Pine Grove Area.

Tioga Co. was poultry converted to hog. Do another conversion to veal or keep it hog. We will sell the equipment if you want something other than hog. Call Sandy for info.

Still have all the needs I've been asking for.

Need Farms for Amish in Lancaster & other Counties
Need 100 acre dairy farm in Chester or Eastern Lanc. County.
Need woodland in northwestern Lanc or Dauphin Co.
Need farmette's in most any central location.
Need private farms with no buildings except house.
The list could go on and on – so just call me for selling your farms.
OVER 31 YEARS REPRESENTING FARMERS AND INVESTORS.

My listings turn to "SOLD."
